Reds Cut Shanghai Escape Routes

D. C. Crimes Set Record, Indictments Show Decline

The number of serious crimes reported in the District during 1948 soared to a record high of 13,029, an increase of more than 62 per cent over 1947.

The increase was reported yesterday in the thirteenth annual report of the Washington Criminal Justice Association, which seeks to improve and strengthen law enforcement agencies.

The monthly average of serious crimes increased from 667 in 1947 to 1086 in 1948.

The District crime bill mounted to a record 15 million dollars, equal to $1750 an hour or more than $15 for every man, woman and child in the District.

Crimes All Serious

Only serious crimes are covered in the association report: arson, aggravated assault, embezzlement, false pretenses, forgery, grand larceny, housebreaking, homicide, incest, mayhem, rape and carnal knowledge, receiving stolen property and robbery.

Of the 13,029 serious crimes reported last year, more than 10,000 involved housebreaking, aggravated assault, or grand larceny.

Because of "vastly improved" police reporting procedures, the association said the 62 per cent increase in reported crime does not indicate a comparable increase in crimes committed.

The report states that while it is unfortunate the real increase in crime cannot be determined, "it is of greater significance that for the first time the District has a reasonably valid estimate" of its crime problem.

Reporting System Overhauled

The Police Department inaugurated in July, 1947, a completely overhauled crime reporting system, after The Washington Post revealed that "hundreds" of reports were being "pocketed" and excluded from annual reports.

"Crime is big business," the association noted, "with the citizen the customer. It collects from us all. It is reflected in taxation and insurance rates. Unless the citizen is watchful, crime, corruption and vice will flourish."

The Criminal Justice Association was formed in 1935, after a congressional committee concluded that District citizens were misinformed because of "statements by public officials which tended to discount the seriousness of crime conditions; and the absence of coordinated crime records."

Sen. Vandenberg Among Roosevelt Medal Recipients

New York, April 24 (AP).—Two educators and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) will receive the Roosevelt Distinguished Service Medals for 1948.

The awards, announced by the Roosevelt Memorial Association yesterday, are made annually for distinguished service in fields associated with the career of Theodore Roosevelt.

Besides Vandenberg, they will go to Dr. James Bryan Conant, president of Harvard University, and Mrs. Rustin McIntosh, dean of Barnard College, New York City.

Conant, a principal consultant in the development of the atomic bomb, was cited for his service in the field of science, Vandenberg in the administration of public office, and Dean McIntosh for leadership of youth and the development of American character.

D. C. Takes New Time In Stride

There may have been a few more yawns than usual on people's faces yesterday morning, but most Washingtonians appeared to take the change to Daylight Saving Time in stride.

True, there was a little confusion at Union Station, National Airport and the bus terminals, and a number of phone calls to information desks for the straight chronological dope, but that was to be expected, as officials said.

Time troubles in the District were fewer this year anyway, it was pointed out, because the city changed over together with other sections of the country. Last year and the year before, we were out of step for one and two weeks while Congress passed the daylight time bill.

Most householders turned their timepieces one hour ahead Saturday night, so they wouldn't forget, and those who provide public time service generally did the same.

GI Preference In U. S. Jobs Questioned

By the United Press

A study released by the Brookings Institution yesterday called on Congress to reexamine the 1944 law which gives war veterans preference for Government jobs.

It said the statute has "fouled and stalled the whole delicate machinery" set up by the Civil Service Commission to put Federal employment strictly on a merit basis.

Despite its "obvious laudable intention," the study said, the law has required the commission to reward veterans by "falsely equating patriotic service with special ability." The result, it added, "has been much like that of a handful of sand in a gear box."

Entitled "Federal Employes in War and Peace," the study was prepared by Frances T. Cahn, a research specialist and former University of Utah professor who has been working for the Government for the past 10 years.

Miss Cahn said a poll of many Government workers in the top salary brackets showed that a large proportion consider Uncle Sam to be a "good employer."

She said questionnaires were sent to one-fourth of all employes of six Government agencies who drew 1947 salaries of $4902 or more. Of those who replied, 59 per cent said they thought the Government was a "good employer" and another 10 per cent replied affirmatively with some qualification. Eight per cent answered "no" and 5 per cent said they were planning to get jobs elsewhere.

About one-third of the answers gave salary, advancement or security as the chief reason the employe picked Government service. Another third gave "professional interest" as the reason, while 14 per cent said they took Government posts because they needed jobs.

Miss Cahn said her study showed that many employes believe the Government should "give more at-

House Comes Back to Face Labor Debate

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

After its 10-day Easter recess, the House goes back into session today faced with the prospect of opening debate Tuesday on highly controversial legislation to repeal the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.

The slow-moving, talk-bound Senate returns again today to consideration of the Commodity Credit bill. Administration leaders hope to complete action on the measure today.

Normally today would be District Day in the House, but it is expected the session will be cut short and adjourned out of respect to the memory of Representative Robert L. Coffey (D., Pa.) who was killed last week in an air crash.

Senate Faces Controversies

The House will probably stay in session just long enough to receive President Truman's four-point message on the national health.

The strife-torn Senate, which has completed action on just three pieces of major legislation in nearly four months, also has some highly controversial measures ahead of it.

After the Commodity Credit bill is disposed of, Administration leaders plan to make the Federal Aid to Education bill the pending order of business. It will be laid aside, temporarily, however, to act on the Labor-Federal Security appropriation bill, the first major appropriation measure the Senate will have considered.

The Federal Aid to Education bill to provide 300 million dollars a year in Federal funds to help States pay school teachers' salaries and other school operating expenses will be followed immediately by a bill to aid the health of all the Nation's school children.

The health aid bill provides 35 million dollars annually for medical services to all children, whether they attend public, private or parochial schools.

Both measures have strong bipartisan sponsorship from all members of the Senate Committee on Education and Labor.

Time-consuming debate, however, can be expected unless, as is not anticipated, the Senate suddenly changes its ways.

Schedule Far From Certain

Hopefully, Administration leaders have scheduled reciprocal trade extension the fourth measure to be considered for a week from today. They concede, however, that it is far from certain the Senate will stick to that time schedule.

After these are out of the way the Senate still must act on ratification of the North Atlantic treaty and revision of the Taft-Hartley Act. These two measures are almost certain to take up at least half of the time remaining until July 31.

Although the House is ahead of schedule on its appropriation bills the Senate is lagging far behind. These, however, the Senate can slap through rapidly if so disposed.

Man's Death in Hotel Is Ruled Suicide

Cobert shot himself in the right temple with a .22-caliber pistol, police said. He had been under treatment at Mount Alto Veterans Hospital for a mental condition.

Met Mrs. Brennan

More Missing People Sought Along 'Lonely Hearts' Trail

Dover, Del., April 24 (AP).—Police hunted today for "several people who mysteriously disappeared" after meeting Mrs. Inez Brennan through lonely hearts letters.

Mrs. Brennan, twice-married 44-year-old brunette, is jailed on a murder charge in the shotgun slaying of one elderly man. Her youngest son, Robert, 15, also is held on a murder charge. Two other sons are accused as accessories.

Col. Herbert E. Barnes, head of Delaware State police, said Mrs. Brennan and her sons also have signed statements admitting the killing of another elderly man.

"A lot of others she met through letters are missing," Barnes told a reporter today. "We've got a lot of hunting still to do."

Barnes put George Brennan, 17, through extensive questioning after he was brought here following his arrest at a Texas Army base. He quizzed George about other missing men, but didn't learn anything.

Barnes said George told him

Parties Agree On a German Constitution

Bonn, Germany, April 24 (U.P.).—Socialist and Christian Democrat Party leaders announced today they had agreed on questions which had blocked attempts to write a constitution for a separate western German government.

Representatives of all parties in the constituent assembly will go to Frankfurt Monday, as a result, to confer with the western Allied military governors and Robert Murphy, chief of the United States State Department's Office for German and Austrian Affairs, who arrived here today from the United States.

It is expected that the conference may clear the way for the creation of the long-planned western German state.

Spokesmen for the Socialists and Christian Democrats said they had reached agreement at a meeting today on the taxation and finance powers of the proposed western regime. They expressed hope that the constitution might be completed by May 15 in a form acceptable to United States, British and French occupation authorities.

There was no public explanation of the sudden shift in position of the rebellious Socialists, who said only last week that they would insist on writing a constitution of their own, and hand it to the Allied authorities on a take-it-or-leave-it basis.

It was suggested that Socialist leader Kurt Schumacher, who had announced his party's stand, might be losing his grip on his fellow leaders. It was known that some of them disagreed with him.

9117 Civilians Slain In Greek Civil War

An army communique reported today that 27 Communist guerillas were killed and 26 captured in two engagements near the Bulgarian border.

Carrier Ban May Force Sullivan Out

By Bert Andrews
NYHT News Service

Resignation of John L. Sullivan as Secretary of the Navy may be hastened, it became apparent last night, as a result of Defense Secretary Louis A. Johnson's action in halting construction of the new 65,000-ton aircraft carrier United States.

It became clear, also, that Johnson issued the stop-order without final oral discussions with Sullivan or Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations.

After he returned to Washington from Corpus Christi, Tex., yesterday, Sullivan was asked:

"Is the decision to stop work on the carrier going to make you advance the date of your resignation?"

"I just got back today," he said. "I've got to get hold of my people (in the Navy Department) and find out what this is all about. I had no idea that such action was going to be taken about the carrier."

Denfeld said:

"How can I comment? Look at the directive."

He referred to "Consolidation Directive No. 1," issued on April 14 under Johnson's name. It established a security review branch of the office of public information of the national defense establishment.

Bound to Silence

The directive gives the branch the right to review "for security, policy and propriety"—not just for security alone—everything that goes out of the establishment in the way of written or verbal information.

It applies to "material for use in press conference or interviews" as well as to all other material supplied by military sources, including individual military personnel, for public dissemination "through any medium of public information."

On Saturday Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) said that passage, along with others in the directive, had "all the makings of a gag rule."

Denfeld made it clear that he felt bound by the directive not to talk, but Sullivan's comment made it obvious he did not feel gagged.

Johnson sent the following memorandum to Sullivan Saturday—while Sullivan was out of town:

"With further reference to the proposed aircraft carrier USS United States, I have now received the views of the chiefs of staff and after careful consideration and discussion of the matter with the President, I have reached the conclusion that appropriate orders should be issued discontinuing the construction of the vessel. Accordingly you will issue such orders as may be required under the circumstances in order that construction may be discontinued at once and at the least possible cost to the Government."

The wording that attracted most interest was that he acted after he had "received the views of the

Backward-Area Aid Called Vast Private Business Push

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

President Truman's "bold new program" for developing the world's backward areas was described yesterday by his Secretary of Commerce as a vast extension of private American business abroad.

Offering the first real clews to Administration plans for putting into effect the Point Four program announced in the President's inaugural address, Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer had these things to say in a Cape Henry, Va., speech:

The program contemplates "in large measure an extension to other parts of the world of what American businessmen and their associates and helpers have done here in America."

But, to lure investments abroad, the Government will have to offer a guarantee which "obviously should cover more than the dollar convertibility of the original capital investment."

There also must be some type of guarantees, he said, against expropriation, inconvertibility of funds and discriminatory treatment of American firms abroad.

The secretary said the Commerce Department is now preparing to act as a "central clearing house for all information of use to the businessmen interested in investing funds in a foreign country."

He said that to be successful in making our scientific advances and industrial progress available to backward areas, the program "must in large part be financed and carried on by private business."

It "may be desirable to finance some developmental projects" through the World Bank or through United States lending agencies but "for the most part" the program "must be employed to encourage American businessmen and investors to venture their money, their time, effort, experience and technical knowledge abroad."

This Government must "obtain the freely given consent and cooperation" of countries to be aided because "we will not force our money, our techniques, or our ideas upon other countries against their will."

Next there must be created a "climate" receptive to American investment abroad. This country will ask no extra-territorial rights, only reciprocity treatment.

To link together the activities of private firms already under way abroad, the bulk of them activities of overseas branches, there is needed "a systematic program for discovering developmental potentialities."

Here, Sawyer said, is where Commerce comes in.

"If we are given appropriations" for the job, he said. Commerce will make available data on such things as cost of financing, risks involved, the political and economic problems of the various regions, potential markets for goods produced and other information.

Sawyer cited as examples of the type of American business abroad he had in mind the United Fruit Co. in Central America, the American oil companies in Venezuela and the Firestone Rubber Co. in Africa's Liberia. He also pointed to current oil, mining, lumbering, hydroelectric power and sugar development by American firms in other parts of the world.

Students Sing Welcome

Nanking Residents View Occupation With Curiosity

By Seymour Topping

Nanking, April 24 (AP).—Twenty thousand Communist troops occupied this Chinese Nationalist capital without opposition today.

In midafternoon three Nationalist planes strafed the "Ming Tomb" airfield inside the walls in the southeast section.

Otherwise Nanking was quiet, although artillery could be heard thudding away about ten miles to southeast. Stray looters still scavenged among the ruins of homes and shops left by Saturday's all-day anarchy before the Reds entered.

The general reaction of this city of more than one million was one of curiosity more than anything else.

Students Greet Reds

Some university students went singing to greet the Communists as they marched up Chungshan Road past the Executive Yuan (Nationalist cabinet) Building, and something of a holiday atmosphere prevailed.

A formal victory parade, originally planned for Sunday, was now being planned for Monday to include larger units of Gen. Chen Yi's Third Field Army.

An edge of excitement was evident, but Nanking showed relief that the transition period was over. It appeared residents would get their first night of rest after a hectic 72 hours.

Nanking awaited entry of Communist political workers to take control of the municipal offices. Most offices, however, were still being operated by their old officials.

Some Embassies Guarded

Communist guards have been stationed at the doors of some embassies and legations, including the American Embassy.

There was no indication as yet of interference with newsmen.

This correspondent's prepaid urgent messages will not cost much as the gold yuan (Nationalist currency) has fallen to zero-minus. No yuan debts will mean anything.

The occupation of Nanking got under way at 3:20 a. m. with entry of a small column of Communist infantry, headed by a jeep containing Nanking emergency peace preservation committee members.

During the day the Communist

Paris Throng Told of 'Terror' Reign in U. S.

Paris, April 24 (AP).—Howard Fast, American writer, told an outdoor rally of partisans of the Communist-sponsored World Peace Congress today that a reign of "terror is only beginning" in America.

"Every voice raised against war is denounced by the Truman Government as an act of treason," he said. "Already the prisons are filled with political prisoners."

Fast spoke at a gathering of about 25,000 adherents of the congress, many of whom came in caravans from all parts of France. The rally in Buffalo Stadium on the outskirts of Paris was part of the six-day congress which closes Monday.

He was given tumultuous applause when he told the crowd the American people were the victims of "the most evil, most hideous deception of all time."

"Day in and day out they are being told that the great Soviet Union, the republic of the workers and guardian of humanity, that land of liberty and freedom is a menace to their own liberty."

He said a group of Wall Street "warmongers" comprised the "most complete, immoral and insane threat to the human race."

"In freedom's holy name we are called upon to turn the entire world into a place of desolation."

Groups tramped into the arena past the speakers' stand, bearing flags, streamers, slogans and huge photographs of Stalin and Franklin D. Roosevelt. In all languages the word "peace" stood out.

Repeated many times was the slogan "We will never fight against the Soviet Union," and "Fight for peace."

HARRY POLLITT

Plymouth, England, April 24 (AP).—Police spirited Communist Leader Harry Pollitt out of an auditorium tonight after he was besieged almost four hours by an angry crowd of nearly 3000 persons.

The howling chair-throwing anti-Communists had chased Pollitt from a speaking platform and laid siege to the building. He sought refuge in an upstairs room.

The police said they took him out through a basement window opening on an alley behind the building.

Joined by sailors in uniform, the crowd had attempted to batter down a human barrier of policemen in front of the auditorium. They had succeeded in breaking up a Communist political meeting inside.

In a repetition of violence that Pollitt encountered Friday night and early Saturday in Dartmouth, the crowd hurled chairs, stones, tomatoes and eggs. Several win-

Trap Is Set For 300,000 Retreating Nationalists

Shanghai (Monday), April 25 (AP).—The Chinese Communists cut the last rail escape route from Shanghai today with the capture of Kashing, rail junction city 53 miles southwest of this largest city of Asia.

Other Red armies raced southeast from occupied Nanking in an attempt to trap 300,000 Nationalist soldiers against the sea between Shanghai and Hangchow.

One Communist force, driving directly toward Shanghai from the west along the south bank of the Yangtze River was reported to have vanguards within 30 miles of this apathetic metropolis tonight.

The only report of Nationalist offensive action was strafing of Nanking's inner airfield by three government planes Sunday afternoon.

The report of the Reds' ambitious entrapment tactics came from Seymour Topping, Associated Press correspondent in Nanking, who presumably got it from Communist sources.

He said more than 30,000 government troops who fled Nanking Saturday already were reported captured as they tried to retreat the 150 miles southeast to the port of Hangchow.

More than 600,000 Communists were said to be involved in the trap-springing operation.

Some 600 miles northwest of Nanking, the Reds took by storm the isolated government arsenal city of Taiyuan, now a smoldering ruin.

The Communist radio announced that Taiyuan, so-called "Pittsburgh of China," was taken by storm in a five-hour battle Sunday and that all the 150,000 defenders were wiped out.

An American aviator confirmed that the whole city was a smoking ruin. R. W. Johnson, Williamette, Ill., chief pilot for the Chinese National Aviation Corp., reported from Tsingtao that he had flown over Taiyuan Sunday morning to drop supplies but was driven off by Red gunners.

Topping's report from Nanking said Nationalists armies under Gen.

Packard Workers Call Strike on Golden Jubilee

Detroit, April 24 (AP).—CIO United Auto Workers Local 190 ordered a strike at midnight tonight at Packard Motor Car Co.

The strike preceded by one week a meeting of 2000 Packard dealers in Detroit to celebrate the company's golden jubilee.

The walkout was voted today at a meeting attended by about 1000 union members, according to Ralph Urban, Local 190 president.

"This is our answer to Packard's golden jubilee," Urban said.

Local officers ordered the walkout without the customary authorization from the international executive board.

Urban listed the union grievances as follows:

Discharge of several employes; violation of seniority rights; barring of the union bargaining committee from the shop in violation of an agreement signed October 21, 1948; failure of the company to correct health hazards in production departments.

London, April 24 (U.P.).—Eager children, clutching everything from pennies to 2-shilling (40-cent) pieces, formed long lines outside candy stores all over Britain today as sweets went off the ration list for the first time in seven years.

One shopkeeper in Folkestone, on the south coast, felt so good about the whole thing he gave away 200 lollipops free.

Anti-Housing Bill Forces Crumbling

By The Associated Press

The last major barrier to final passage of a vast housing program appeared to be crumbling last night. A leading House opponent indicated foes may be about ready to call off the fight.

Representative Wolcott (R., Mich.), who as House Banking chairman in the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress led the successful opposition last year, said, "I don't think we will be able to stop it now."

"It still looks like socialism to me," he told a reporter. "But the 57-to-13 vote by which the Senate approved the bill Thursday is a little too much to combat. I don't know that we are going to try to stop it."

A showdown in the House probably will occur in two weeks.

The Senate-approved measure authorizes a far-flung slum clearance program and construction in six years of 810,000 low-rent public housing units. It provides also for a 275-million-dollar farm housing program, and for housing research.

Somewhat similar bills were passed by the Senate last year and in 1946, but they died in the House. And despite Wolcott's statement that he doesn't see much use in fighting further, debate probably will develop considerable fireworks.

Realtors to Organize Nation's Landlords

The National Association of Real Estate Boards set out yesterday to "organize the Nation's rental housing industry with its 10 million owners and estimated investment of 70 billion dollars."

The association said that local real estate boards have been urged to sponsor "rental housing industry committees" which would act on such subjects as rent control, public housing, tax matters and the like affecting the industry.

"If the industry does not do something of this kind soon, we fear that it will be in for the same kind of treatment it has had in France and England," the statement said.

Membership would include, the association said, "every local owner of rental property who agrees to assist in slum elimination, work for improved housing, obey rent laws, deal fairly with the tenants and cooperate in working for fair treatment of owners."

The industry committee should name a grievance committee to hear complaints of tenants and publish its conclusions so the public may know of "its genuine concern" with violations and unfairness, the statement said.

Self-discipline also could help in getting controls lifted, it observed.

Gerard Poll On Labor Act Irks Lesinski

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The numerous public polls on the Taft-Hartley Act and various phases of management-labor relations have had, during the past year, one common characteristic: making no friends and influencing no Congressmen.

Latest of the polls, however, has served to arouse the ire of Representative John Lesinski, chairman of the House Labor Committee and titular head of the Administration's drive in the House to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act.

The Michigan Democrat yesterday asked the Justice Department to investigate the poll sponsored by Sumner Gerard, New York real estate man. Lesinski charges that Gerard's polling activities are an "apparent violation" of the lobbyist registraton law."

'Loaded' Questionnaire

The Gerard poll, according to Lesinski, is a "loaded" questionnaire asking "one-sided, prejudicially phrased" questions designed to defend the Taft-Hartley Act.

Chairman Lesinski asserted that Gerard, without so saying on his poll, is treasurer of the "reactionary" Committee for Constitutional Government, and that the return address ae uses for receiving funds is the same as the address of the committee.

Gerard is not registered as a lobbyist, Lesinski declared, 'although he is obviously spending and soliciting money for the purpose of influencing Congressmen to retain the Taft-Hartley Act.

The lobby registration law contains maximum penalties of a year in jail and $5000 fine.

Nature of Gerard Poll

The Gerard poll consists of a series of questions under the title, 'How Would You Revise Our Labor Laws?" Persons filling out the "Yes" or "No" answers to the poll are urged to send the ballot to their Congressman and Senators.

A message to the persons filling out the questionnaire also asks financial aid, as follows:

"You, all citizens, must sacrifice to assure sound government. To carry this message to millions across the country, many thousands of patriotic citizens must give $1, $2, $3, $5, $10 and hundreds $25, $50, $100 or more, but not more than $490. Please help today. Each $100 places this message before 10,000 more citizens. This is your and every citizen's fight."

Capitol Hill Deluged

Tens of thousands of ballots on various and sundry labor law polls have deluged Capitol Hill, possibly without affecting a single vote on labor legislation coming before the House this week.

A checkup among the Congressmen indicates that few have done more than send courteous form letters in reply to the persons sending in their ballots. Some of the Representatives have done little more than count the mail and dump the questionnaire-ballots into the wastebasket.

Biggest of the polls—in terms of numbers reached—was sponsored by General Electric. This questionnaire was devised by GE's employe relations department and originally printed in newspaper advertisements in 77 cities in which GE has major plants.

Copied By Other Firms

Scores of organizations and other companies asked for and duplicated the GE poll. Among these were Revere Copper and Brass, Phelps-Dodge, The Mining Congress, Citizens Committee for Industrial Freedom, Potash Company of America, Union Steel Products Co., Cotton Manufacturers of Georgia, Caterpillar Tractor Co. Many business and trade magazines also reprinted the GE poll.

The GE ballot was given further impetus by Fulton Lewis, jr. in his news broadcasts. GE believes as many as half a million persons filled out the questionnaires and bombarded Congress with them.

Organized labor charges that the GE poll was "loaded" with questions for management and against labor. The union leaders also charge that many of the questions were in the "When did you stop beating your wife?" category.

One of the questions, No. 14, as broadcast by Lewis read: "Do you believe it should be unlawful for a worker to be prevented from performing his job by the use of violence, force or intimidation?"

Representative Andrew Jacobs (D., Ind.), who favors repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, told the House he got 91 answers shortly after the broadcast, 70 answering No. 14 with "No." Obviously, Jacobs quipped, the persons who filled out the questionnaire didn't understand the question.

GOP Strategy Turns Toward 'Grass Roots'

NYHT News Service

A special committee of Republican leaders set up in January to consider the feasibility of holding a national policy conference changed its signals yesterday and organized itself into a "Republican strategy committee" to direct all party activities for the 1950 campaign.

The special committee was created by the Republican National Committee in January at Omaha as a so-called "organization policy committee" to consider proposals for staging a national policy conference to draft a new statement of party principles.

In revamping itself the group agreed:

1. To sidetrack for this year the proposals for a national policy conference.

2. To sponsor instead a series of two or three regional conferences to sound out "grass-roots" Republican sentiment on such issues as agriculture, industry, taxation and conservation.

The renamed "strategy committee" is composed of six members of the national committee and three representatives each of the Senate, House, Governors, State chairmen and State finance chairmen. Representative Scott of Pennsylvania, the national chairman, is also ex-officio chairman of the strategy group.

The new group, which apparently will be super-imposed above the national committee in working out campaign strategy, set forth no precise definition of its duties and functions by voting itself this new power.

Scott said the group had authorized him to name a subcommittee of six, with himself as ex-officio chairman, to function continuously for the larger committee on strategy matters. The effect of this will be to give the party a small strategy board for the 1950 campaign to make day-to-day decisions.

Scott is expected to name Senator Brewster of Maine, chairman of the senatorial campaign committee; Representative Hall of New York, chairman of the congressional campaign committee, and Thomas E. Coleman, State finance chairman of Wisconsin, to serve on this group. Coleman was elected vice chairman of the full "strategy committee."

Mine Union Committee Meets Today on Contract Demands

By the United Press

The United Mine Workers 200-man wage policy committee meeting here today will have before it 712 suggestions for raising pay and improving working conditions during 1949 contract negotiations.

These proposals were contained in wage scale resolutions referred to the policy committee by the 1948 convention. Most are covered in the 10 general demands adopted by the convention but they provide the committee with the specific limits to which they are expected to go in dealing with the operators.

When miners President John L. Lewis submits demands to the operators, he may follow the practice of the past three years by offering the general proposals and wait until the closed bargaining sessions to specify amounts.

Objective asked by the convention resolutions for this year's contract include guaranteed annual wage or working time.

These include requests for $15 a day, $75 a week for 52 weeks guaranteed work for 260 days a year, and pay for 200 days a year whether worked or not. These requested guarantees fall in with Lewis' plan for regularizing employment in the industry so that all the miners will receive an equal amount of work.

On hours of work, the top request of the convention was for a six-hour day from portal to portal five days per week—a 30-hour week.

Meanwhile, in preparation for the approaching battle over the 1949 contract, Lewis has announced engagement of George Creel, 72-year-old author and journalist, as "consultant and adviser" to the director of the UMW health and insurance fund.

Creel was the Government's top public relations expert in World War I, gaining fame for his salesmanship of the war effort to the public.

chiefs of staff." Most observers believed the cancellation resulted from a majority vote of the Army and Air Force members of the joint chiefs, with Johnson and the President concurring.

Sullivan, when he sees the people of his department today, is certain to run into officers who will argue to him—if not publicly—that such a method of making decisions by a majority vote would injure morale in the Navy by making young Navy officers feel they have no real future.

The same morale problem would doubtlessly be encountered in either of the other services if it found itself overruled by a majority vote.

One thing was certain last night—that the whole situation may be in for an overhauling by some committees in Congress which do not feel as yet that "consolidation directive No. 1" should prevent them from obtaining information about the armed services.

Daylight Time Now in Effect

The time changed officially at 2 a. m.

Public Buildings Administration electricians, for instance, had most of the 19,600 clocks in PBA-operated Federal buildings reset by yesterday morning.

Between 5000 and 6000 of these are individually plugged into electric circuits and had to be changed one by one, F. R. Brant, PBA operations officer, explained.

In the more modern Government buildings, where master clocks control all timepieces, the impulses in the electric system were speeded up so they moved forward two hours in one. Another system used was to cut off electric current from all clocks in a building, turn the clocks forward individually by two hours, and turn on the current on the next hour.

Adjusters of outdoor public clocks on the streets and in church and other towers did most of their work in the dark of Saturday night. PBA men who changed the timepiece in the old Postoffice Building tower at Pennsylvania ave. and 12th st. nw., conscientiously did it at 2 a. m.

Congress Gets Farm Program Figures Today

By the United Press

Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan will tell Congress today what it might cost to give consumers a break on meat, milk and egg prices and still guarantee farmers a fair income.

The estimate—and Agriculture Department officials emphasize it can be nothing more because of such question marks as weather—will be outlined before the House Agriculture Committee.

Some congressional critics of the Administration's new farm program have argued it would impose too heavy a load on the taxpayers. Brannan denies that, and has collected figures to show it should cost no more than the present law.

The Government now supports farm prices by purchasing surplus commodities and taking them off the market. That keeps up the farmer's prices but doesn't help the consumer who helps pay for the farm program out of his taxes, Brannan complains.

Instead of taking eggs and butter off the market as the Government now is doing, he wants to let retail prices seek their own levels. The Government then would pay farmers the difference between the support price and the price they actually got.

tention to planning a career service."

"They felt this might be achieved through more concentrated training on a departmental basis and through special care in the selection and training of supervisors," she said.

"At the present time, it is not generally possible for the Government to send its public servants to universities for special work. Provisions should be made to allow individuals of proven ability to take leave for such studies."

Miss Cahn has served in the Social Security Board, the now-defunct Office of Price Administration, and the Bureau of the Budget.

Worker to 'Pay Through Nose' For Health Plan, Wherry Says

By The Associated Press

Senate Republican Leader Wherry (Nebr.) lit into President Truman's health program last night as National Democratic Chairman McGrath accused the plan's foes of resorting to "untrue scare tactics."

Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) confirmed that the Administration's bill to implement national health insurance will call for a payroll tax of about 3 per cent—split between workers and employers—on income up to $4800 a year.

Pepper plans to join several other Congress members in sponsoring the bill, which is slated for introduction in the Senate and House today.

Besides the insurance plan, the program contemplates (a) special financial aid for expansion of medical school, (b) a boost in Federal aid for the construction of hospitals, and (c) more money for the public health services.

Wherry contended that the Nation's workers would "pay through the nose" for the Administration's health insurance program. He told a reporter the provision for employers to share the cost "doesn't mean a thing, because they would just charge it up to the consumer in the form of higher prices."

McGrath, in charging critics of the program with using "untrue scare tactics," said that he had in mind:

"1. The American Medical Association's 'estimate' that national health insurance would cost from 10 billion dollars to 18 billion dollars a year.

"2. The 'estimate' that the plan would require from 400,000 to 500,000 additional Federal employes.

"3. The assertion that national health insurance would lower medical standards and put a third party between patient and doctor."

The Rhode Island Senator called the two "estimates" greatly exaggerated, but cited no specific figures in reply.

Standards of 'Healthy America' Seen Lowered

Chicago, April 24 (AP).—An American Medical Association official today said President Truman's health plan "would lower the standards of healthy America to those of sick, regimented Europe."

Dr. Elmer L. Henderson, chairman of the AMA board of trustees, issued the statement through a public relations firm. He said:

"There is neither hope nor promise in this system of regimented medical care. It is the discredited system of decadent nations which are living off the bounty of the American people—and if adopted, it would not only jeopardize the health of our people, but would gravely endanger our freedom."

Gunfire in Berlin

Briton Lost, 3 Germans Held by Reds

Berlin, April 24 (AP).—A British soldier is missing today and three German police of the American zone are in Russian hands after two border shootings.

British military government officials in Hamburg said the British soldier has been missing since Friday. Officials said three British soldiers were walking along an unused railway track at Kleinzecher toward the Soviet zone border when a Russian sentry fired on them with a tommygun.

Two ran for safety and discovered when they reached cover their comrade was not with them.

Senior British officials have been negotiating for his return.

German officials at Coburg in the American zone quoted a witness as saying Russian troops seized three German patrolmen of the border patrol after wounding one with a burst of tommygun fire. He said the patrolmen were attacked without warning yesterday a few yards from the wooded frontier about 10 miles from Coburg.

Negotiations were started for their release also.

Moscow, April 24 (U.P.).—Archibald Johnston, 52, veteran British newspaperman, renounced his citizenship today in protest against "British and American warmongering," and declared he will remain in the Soviet Union to fight for peace.

Johnston was chief editor of the British Embassy's Russian-language weekly, Britansky Soyuznik (British Ally). He was appointed to that post in February, 1947. For years he was employed on the Liberal London newspaper, the News Chronicle.

In a letter which took up four columns in the official Communist Party paper Pravda, Johnston said the Atlantic Pact gave the final impetus to his "irrevocable decision."

The North Atlantic Treaty, he wrote, is "really a military bloc of imperialist states headed by the United States and England, directed primarily against the Soviet Union, the sole one of the great powers fighting for peace."

Laments Fate of Britons

Johnston lamented the fate of the British people, who, having escaped Nazi slavery, can look forward to "a no less dire and tragic fate—American slavery."

Excorjating the British Embassy staff from Ambassador Sir Maurice Peterson down to the last code clerk, Johnston cited embassy instructions to print all the anti-Soviet speeches made by Prime Minister Clement Attlee, Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison.

He denounced the British government for importing guns and planes from America instead of food.

"The most tragic things are still ahead," he said. "Already the new Shakespeare Shylock in the person of Congressman Clarence Cannon D., Mo.) demands a pound of flesh from the English people.'

Bacon to England

As an example of Britain's privations, he said his assistant, Stanley Bullmer, recently sent a small piece of Russian beacon to his father in England—equal to "the father's four-year meat ration."

Johnston said a flood of mystery stories for children, gangster thrillers and all sorts of United States "digests" were corrupting England, and "crowding Shakespeare and Byron from university libraries and homes."

With war clouds once more threatening to envelop the world, Johnston wrote, "every honest man must admit he cannot remain indifferent . . . I cannot longer remain an instrument in the hands of Attlee, Bevin, Morrison and other leaders of the Labor Party who are aiding American monopolists to whom war brings enormous dividends."

In his two years in the Soviet Union he never heard anyone advocate war, he said.

Civilian Hiring Is Stopped

Berlin, April 24 (AP).—The Army has stopped hiring American civilians for military government jobs in Germany.

Col. James T. Duke, personnel officer, said today recruitment has been frozen because considerable change in organization is expected when the Army turns the occupation job over to a civilian high commissioner.

The switch to a civilian governor is likely to be made in July. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, military governor, plans to retire at that time. John J. McCloy, former Assistant Secretary of War and head of the World Bank, has been reported as the choice for civilian commissioner if he will accept the job.

Military government now has about 2500 American employes in the American zone and in the United States sector of Berlin. The staff once was three times its present size but now, after a year and a half of steady paring, the Americans have the smallest payroll of all the occupying powers. Latest figures showed the British with 8000 and the French with 9000.

Work to Defend Shanghai . . .

Red Armies Near Shanghai

Tang En-po in the great triangle between Shanghai, Nanking and Hangchow, apparently were attempting to fall back on a new line anchored at Hangchow on the sea and running southwest along the Tsien Tang River to intersect the Chekiang-Kiangsi Railway.

Military observers in Nanking believed the government troops falling back into Shanghai soon would try to leave by sea for Hangchow, other south China ports and the island of Formosa.

To try to trap the Nationalists before they can set up the new line, the Communists are wheeling scutheast in an enveloping movement aimed at the coast near Hangchow. Other Reds are driving dir ctly toward Shanghai from the west. Capture of that great city would deny Tang En-po what limited sea evacuation facilities are available to him.

Most Shanghai residents were trying desperately to save their property from looters.

Some looting already was reported from outlying districts of this greatest Asiatic city of more than five million population.

The streets were jammed all day Sunday with trucks, cars, rickshas, pedicabs and porters moving possessions to downtown warehouses, where they presumably would be safer.

Refugees swarmed out of Shanghai, but others hiked in, hoping for greater security in the business district.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, the "retired" Nationalist President, left Shanghai Sunday morning for the southern port of Amoy in a warship. (Presumably a Chinese warship, though not so identified.)

Acting President Li Tsung-jen was in the southern city of Kweilin, but planned soon to go to the provisional capital at Canton, where Premier Ho Ying-chin arrived Sunday afternoon.

Gen. Tang En-po, defense commander, was reported to have three armies (60,000 men) around Shanghai, four armies scattered west for 100 miles, three more retreating southwest of Nanking and five retreating southeast of Nanking. (This would total about 300,000 men.) Neutral experts predicted he would lose all but the three around Shanghai and some of those just west of Shanghai.

Shanghai, behind its 35-mile wooden fence, was not expected to become a battleground unless Tang should try to evacuate his troops by sea. To prevent this, the Reds could block the Whangpoo River's narrow channel and attack Woosung fort, guarding the Wangpoo's confluence with the Yangtze estuary.

United States Naval authorities intimated that this possibility, plus recent Communist attacks on white-flagged British ships in the Yangtze, was causing changes in American evacuation plans. They felt that American ships would have to clear out before the last moment.

2 Russsian Couriers Flying to Shanghai

Aboard Northwest Airlines Plane Bound for Shanghai (Monday) April 25 (U.P.). — Two "Russian diplomatic couriers" boarded this plane in Tokyo today for threatened Shanghai with 351 pounds of secret luggage which has diplomatic immunity.

They are Grigori Prokine, 42, and Ivan Titov, 40.

They said the trip was "routine," but their presence aboard this plane and their trip to Shanghai — which is almost certain to fall into Communist hands soon — has created considerable interest.

forces increased steadily, some coming by ferry from Pukow on the north bank and others who had crossed southwest of Nanking marching in from the south.

Discipline Is Excellent

All the Communists looked as if they had been on a hard march but their discipline was excellent.

They speedily occupied all key points. Those not on immediate duty sat in small neat rows all over the city, singing in unison or listening to talks by their officers. Curious civilians gathered around each group.

The Communists assisted in putting out a vandal-set fire that wrecked the Judicial Yuan building.

The Nanking Hotel became headquarters. Copies of a "liberation proclamation" signed by Gen. Chen Yi were posted all over Nanking.

It promised to maintain employment of government workers not on the Reds' war criminal list, safety for all peaceful citizens, and protection for foreigners and foreign property if the foreigners did not engage in espionage or shelter war criminals.

Any available property of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was ordered confiscated at once.

Most of Nanking's papers published on schedule, carrying prominent welcomes to the Communists and laudatory news articles from Red radio broadcasts on Communist victories.

When the three Nationalist planes raided the inner airfield, Communist antiaircraft fired back.

Nationalist Soldiers Walk Nanking Streets

Nanking, April 24 (AP).—Some unarmed Nationalist soldiers walked the streets of Nanking tonight. At least for the time being, the Communists were paying no attention to them.

One policeman, on duty in front of the Australian Embassy, said he was ordered to retreat Saturday but became disgusted, hiked back to Nanking Sunday and took up his old post.

He stood there tonight with rifle and bayonet. Nobody bothered him.

Damage was reported slight.

The planes evidently were trying to destroy the big dumps of fuel and bombs that retreating Nationalist infantry left intact Saturday.

At the military airfield outside the walls, the dumps blew up at 9 p. m. Saturday from time bombs set by the retreating troops several hours earlier.

Truman Urged U. N. Police Force in 1946

By the United Press

A 2-year-old letter from President Truman calling for a United Nations police force "sufficient . . . to maintain the peace of the world" was made public for the first time yesterday.

The letter, dated December 2, 1946, was in reply to one from Senator Elbert D. Thomas (D., Utah), stating that the "technique for the accomplishment of the desire for disarmament is still lacking."

Thomas said Mr. Truman's letter is "now timely" because of Soviet Premier Josef Stalin's recent statements on peace and disarmament.

An accompanying statement by the United States Federation of Justice said the President's letter "appears to be the only declaration by the head of any state since the war for a force strong enough to prevent another war."

The federation offered a $100 reward for the first copy of any similar declaration by the head of any government or any proposal by any U. N. official.

In his letter, Mr. Truman said he favored world disarmament, but not on a unilateral basis. He said if this Nation had spent two billion dollars on arms between the two world wars, the recent war might have been avoided.

"As President of the United States I do not expect to make that same mistake again," he asserted. "When we have a U. N. program implemented and we have a sufficient police force for U. N. to maintain the peace of the world, then I am ready to talk disarmament and talk it in dead earnest, but not sooner."

The federation lists among its officers former Senator Arthur Capper (R., Kans.); John Dewey, professor of philosophy at Columbia University; Roscoe Pound, Harvard University law professor, and former Warden Lewis E. Lawes of Sing Sing (N. Y.) prison.

People Urged to Ask Quick Pact Approval

New York, April 24 (NYHT.).—An appeal to the public to write or telegraph members of the Senate asking quick ratification of the North Atlantic Defense Pact was made public today by former Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts, former Secretary of War Robert Patterson and former Undersecretary of State Will Clayton.

Their statement was in the form of an open letter to the American people, released by the Atlantic Union Committee, of which Roberts is president and Patterson and Clayton vice presidents.

At the same time, the Right Rev. William Scarlett, chairman of the international justice department of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, announced he had written all Senators asking adoption of a resolution clarifying the exact meaning of the pact.

To Prevent Attack

The Roberts - Patterson - Clayton letter termed the pact "an essential emergency measure to prevent an attack by Soviet Russia."

Stating that the pact is opposed by some who fear that it may divide the world into two camps, they wrote: "The truth is that whenever the democracies have been afraid to acknowledge the fundamental division between dictatorship and democracy, the delay has permitted the dictatorships to pick off the democracies, one by one, as Hitler did. The lives lost in two word wars of our century might have been saved if Germany and Japan had known in advance that they would meet united resistance. . . . Delay in approving the pact will encourage Russia and discourage nations that are resisting Russian aggression."

Asks Four Questions

Bishop Scarlett asked a resolution declaring that ratification of the pact:

1. Is not construed as closing the avenues of diplomatic conversation with the Soviet Union.

2. Is not construed as the equivalent of, or as a substitute for, a universal system of collective security.

3. Is not construed as the equivalent of, or as a substitute for those curative and creative efforts of government through which it is sought to promote economic recovery, to strengthen the institutions of democracy, and to advance the political and social well being of subject and dependent peoples.

4. Is not construed as compromising in any way the prior responsibility of the President and the Congress in the shaping of American foreign policy.

Byrd Asks About Voting Yes on Pact, No on Arms

By The Associated Press

Senator Byrd (D., Va.) asked Secretary of State Acheson in a letter yesterday if a Senator can vote for the North Atlantic Security Treaty without committing himself to support a foreign arms program.

Byrd, a chief economy advocate in Congress, told a reporter he would like to vote for ratification of the security agreement.

But he said he is not now favorably inclined toward the State Department's proposal to supply $1,130,000,000 in military equipment in the next year to the 11 nations which signed the agreement along with the United States.

Acheson's answer may be of prime importance as the Senate prepares to consider the treaty with hearings opening Wednesday.

In his approach to the double-barreled foreign question, Byrd represents in viewpoint a sizable segment of Senate opinion.

Dr. Bunche May Get Top Post at State

NYHT News Service

Dr. Ralph Bunche, whose role in bringing peace to Palestine as United Nations mediator has won him international acclaim, is being discussed, among others, it was learned yesterday, for appointment to the proposed new post of Assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern and African Affairs.

Dr. Bunche

His success in winning the confidence of both Arabs and Jews in Holy Land has brought his name, not only into the inner Administration discussions of prospective nominees for this job, but also, alternatively, for appointment as American Ambassador to some nation in the Near or Middle East.

His appointment, either as an Ambassador or Assistant Secretary of State, would give this 44-year-old grandson of a slave and former Howard University professor, one of the highest Government positions ever attained by a Negro.

dows in the building were smashed by stones. Police Inspector John Linsay was struck by a piece of debris and knocked unconscious.

Pollitt said he was going to Cornwall for "a rest."

About 100 sailors broke down the massive doors of the ancient Corn Exchange building, the public auditorium used for the scheduled meeting.

They forced their way up a flight of stairs and stormed into the meeting which Pollitt was addressing. Pollitt, secretary-general of the British Communist Party, tried in vain to continue above the din.

Sailors and about 150 others rushed the platform when Pollitt tried to speak on the subject of the Yangtze shelling of British warships. Three of the four British ships shelled by Chinese Communists are registered in Plymouth harbor and many of the crewmen are from this city.

The crowd outside the auditorium continued to grow as Pollitt remained inside. Shouts of "We want Pollitt" were heard.

Denies Seeing Rope

Pollitt, in a statement issued earlier, denied he "saw a rope" at the Dartmouth meeting.

A rope had been brought to the meeting by the father of one of the British sailors killed in the shelling of the British warships on the Yangtze by Communist forces. The sailor's father suggested Pollitt use the rope.

Pollitt insisted the incident escaped his attention. He said:

"I have the deepest sympathy with the bereaved families in Devon and have no complaint to make about their reaction to my meetings. But if I had canceled my meetings, I would have been accused of being a coward and of not wanting to put the Communist Party's policy before the people...

"One thing is clear. The blame for the death of the splendid British lads on the Yangtze will be placed at the door of the government. If we had been following a true socialist policy, it would never have occurred."

Tel Aviv, Israel, April 24 (AP).—Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett discussed today the discrepancy between Russia's "unchanging friendship" toward Israel, and what he said was the trend to liquidate the Zionist movement in several eastern European countries close to the Soviet Union.

While Russia's attitude toward Israel is highly gratifying, "we are deeply distressed" by the second trend, he told a news conference.

Sharett was asked if there were any political implication in the departure for Moscow last week of Pavel Ivanovitch Yershov, Russian minister to Tel Aviv. The Israeli foreign minister replied angrily:

"I warn rumor mongers against fomenting intrigue between Israel and the Soviet Union."

He said no successor had been named yet for Mrs. Golda Myerson, former Israeli minister to Moscow. She returned last week to take up the postal ministry in the Israeli cabinet.

"We now are in the process of appointing a new minister to Moscow," Sharett said.

Backers to Renew Sales Tax Drive

Bucking a heavy legislative program, Senate District leaders will renew efforts this week to bring up the city 2 per cent sales tax bill for early floor action.

The House-passed measure, designed to raise about 18 million dollars in new revenue, has been pending on the Senate calendar more than two weeks.

Capitol Hill observers held out little hope last night, however, that the District measure would be acted upon this week in view of the Senate schedule.

The week's program calls for continued debate Monday on Commodity Credit Corporation legislation, followed by the labor and Federal security appropriations bills, a 35-million-dollar school health bill and the Federal-aid-to-education measure.

Retroactive pay raises for District workers and final action on the House-trimmed Commissioner's "austerity" budget, both await Senate consideration of the key revenue bill.

A spokesman for the Senate Democratic Policy Committee said yesterday that the leadership "has real interest" in the city's present fiscal problem, "knows something must be done, but as yet have not worked out a time to take up the measure."

Chairman J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) and Senator Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.) of the Senate District Committee have pointed out to the Senate leadership that every month's delay in passage of the sales tax bill after May 1 means a loss of about $1,200,000 in revenue during the coming fiscal year.

In another move of wide local interest, Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.) is expected to introduce Monday or Tuesday his bill calling for construction of a 60,000-seat sports stadium here, financed by a public subscription bond issue. He estimates the project would cost $2,500,000.

Identification was made by a sister, Mrs. Nellie Cogan of 3356 Baker st. ne., police said.

Eunice Jones, 28, of 314 E st. nw., who has been charged with murder in Mayhugh's death, will appear at a coroner's inquest at 11:30 a. m. today at the District morgue.

She is the common-law wife of Crispin Perez, who is awaiting sentence for the murder of Charles Hines of Madison, Wis., who was slain in an Ambassador Hotel room last December.

Mayhugh was injured early Saturday morning, when he was shoved to the sidewalk from the fender of a taxicab parked in the 200 block of G st. nw., aft - the cab driver, Daniel Ripple of 5311 38th ave., Hyattsville, Md., complained that the man was drunk and wouldn't get off the fender, police reported.

'Yard' Follows Trail of Poison For the Masses

London, April 24 (U.P.).—Scientists at Scotland Yard today analyzed pies and jellies which it is suspected, were injected with arsenic in a mass murder plot by a hospital biologist.

The biologist's wife is dead, several other persons have been violently ill after eating food prepared by him, and the biologist himself committed suicide by poisoning a few hours before police were to perform an autopsy on his wife's body.

Several days before she died April 12, Mrs. Margery Radford, 42, told a friend she believed her husband was trying to poison her by putting arsenic in delicacies he sent her in a hospital where she was suffering from tuberculosis.

She was the second wife of Frederick Gordon Radford, 46, senior laboratory technician at St. Thomas Hospital in Milford, Surrey.

His first wife died on the Isle of Wight in 1931. Blood poisoning and pneumonia were given as the causes of her death.

Radford killed himself Tuesday night by taking cyanide just after being questioned by police on his second wife's death.

Detectives suspected that Radford may have killed his wife in order to marry another woman who was interviewed by police last night.

Mrs. Radford's 70-year-old father said he was "certain that Radford was trying to kill me as well as his wife." He said he had become violently ill about two months ago after Radford had cooked breakfast for him.

The police official said Dether is coming to Dover early this week.

Has Story to Tell

"He doesn't want us to blame the kids," Barnes said. "He told me he has some very important things to tell me."

The two slain men, Wade N. Wooldridge, 67, Bedford, Va., and Hugo Schulz, 61, Concord, N. H., were met through lonely hearts letters. Barnes said Mrs. Brennan, seeking to rob the victims, shot Schulz and ordered Robert to kill Wooldridge.

Among those Barnes said have "mysteriously disappeared" since corresponding with Mrs. Brennan are Harvey Dromheller, Laurel Springs, N. J., and Fred W. Schub, 63, Salisbury, Md.

Barnes also quizzed George about the slaying of Charles L. Heppard, 66, Andrewsville, Del., a widower who was found shot and clubbed to death February 19 about 20 miles from the Brennan farm.

Police to Call Outside Aid in Owen Case

Riverside, Calif., April 24 (AP).—Authorities indicated today an outside crime expert would be asked to assist in investigation of the slaying of wealthy John E. Owen, friend of Actress Irene Rich.

Owen, 68, president of the National Association of Apartment House Owners, was shot to death Friday night at his luxurious Riverside ranch.

His secretary and manager of some of his real estate properties, Mrs. Agnes E. Garnier, 53, a divorcee, is held on a booking of suspicion of murder. District Attorney William Mackey said she admitted the shooting in a statement and Mrs. Garnier said through her attorney that the killing followed a spat over some cocktail glasses given Owen by Miss Rich.

Mackey asked Ray Pinker, ballistics expert and chemist of Los Angeles police crime laboratory, to examine Owen's body.

An inquest was set by Coroner Ben White for 4 p. m. (PST) Monday.

Prosecutor Mackey indicated the filing of formal charges against Mrs. Garnier would await the inquest and further investigation.

Miss Rich, thrice-married stage and screen actress, said in New York that she and Owen, both cattle-raising enthusiasts, had been friends for five years and she had gone out with Owen when he was in New York. She denied there was any romance.

Owen and his wife, Mrs. Florence Owen, Beverly Hills, Calif., are estranged.

Owen, a one-time Michigan State representative who lived in Detroit from 1919 to 1941, was nationally known in the realty field and recently had been active in Washington in trying to bring an end to rent controls.

He is John Harris, 42, of 42 Myrtle st. ne., who was charged with murder in the death of James Payne, 101 I st. nw. Payne was shot and killed during an argument about a crap game Saturday night.

The shooting was observed by Detectives Thomas I. Herlihy and John W. Hayes of the special investigation squad, who were cruising nearby. Herlihy fired one shot at Harris as he fled. The bullet grazed Harris' neck, but he kept running until he was downed by Hayes, who tackled him.

Harris was put under police guard at Gallinger Hospital.

Dividends from Saving

It does not matter why you start saving. Or what you save for. There are almost as many special reasons as there are people who save. And very few start saving simply to teach themselves habits of thrift. But the habit of saving, and the peace of mind that a growing account give, are two important dividends a Savings Account brings.

Add to these a third—the liberal dividend this Association pays on Savings. Open an account — with $5 or more — add to it monthly.

Forgotten Prisoner

Arrested in North Carolina on a larceny warrant issued in the District, a Negro suspect has been held four months in the local jail without a hearing. A procedural inadequacy in the method of processing prisoners brought from other jurisdictions is the feeble excuse given by Donald Clemmer, head of the District Department of Corrections, for this scandalous miscarriage of justice. Mr. Clemmer explains that his department is a detention agency, taking orders from court officials, and if no orders are given his department is under no compulsion to take the initiative. However, it is pertinent to ask why Mr. Clemmer did not press for action by the responsible officials in the present instance, instead of merely expressing regret at the delay in according the accused man a hearing after his plight had been brought to the attention of the District Court by his lawyer. Of course, the major responsibility falls upon the prosecuting officials.

The most disturbing aspects of this case is its exposure of the slipshod methods that make it possible for a man to serve what amounts to a prison sentence before he has even been indicted for the offense with which he is charged. The investigation ordered by United States Attorney Fay may serve a useful purpose by exposing the defects of the present method of dealing with prisoners brought from other jurisdictions. The Washington Post hopes, however, that the investigation will go farther and discover why corrective reforms were not introduced long ago without the prodding of unpleasant publicity to serve as a stimulus. Official inaction is due either to inexcusable inertia or to an equally unpardonable ignorance of the defective nature of the procedures now being followed.

Promoting Science

Once again Congress is considering how to establish a workable National Science Foundation. From the standpoint of the country's ultimate security it is imperative that there be no further delay in taking stock of the Nation's scientific enterprise, with the emphasis on covering the weak spots and recruiting more scientific personnel. Since the war the accent has been largely on applied science as financed by the military, and basic research has lagged badly. Yet neither of the two principal Science Foundation bills—the Thomas bill in the Senate and the Priest bill in the House—can be counted an entirely satisfactory answer to the need.

Of the two the Thomas bill seems to us slightly preferable. It is a somewhat revised version of the Kilgore bill vetoed by the President in 1947 on the ground that it was administratively infeasible. The present measure contains many essential provisions—surveys of the various fields of scientific activity, governmental grants and scholarships, broad authority to enter into contracts, publish reports and cooperate in international research. Unfortunately, the methods by which it would accomplish these desirable aims are not so clear as the aims themselves.

For example, the Thomas bill prescribes no straight line of responsibility; instead, it relies on the system of committee government which elsewhere has failed so miserably to bring competent decisions. It calls for a foundation of 24 part-time members—men eminent in science, education and public affairs to be appointed by the President—along with a full-time director of the foundation. Nowhere, however, are the relations between the director and the foundation spelled out. The same muddy arrangement applies to the various divisions under the foundation, which would be run by committees rather than responsible heads working with advisory groups. Nor is there adequate provision to prevent the concentration of foundation membership among representatives of a few large institutions with attendant favoritism for the universities where science is best established.

On patent rights the Thomas bill attempts a compromise, leaving it to the foundation to safeguard the public interest. Patents are, of course, more a concern of applied than of pure research. But although there is a case for a flexible policy, we should prefer an outright statement that the benefits of inventions financed by the Government should accrue to the people. The bill makes no specific mention of the social sciences, but neither does it exclude them, and this arrangement may be desirable as a legislative strategem.

Even with its flaws, the Thomas bill would be far better than no legislation at all. But in an undertaking of such vast importance, it ought to be the concern of Congress to see: first, that the administrative mechanism is geared to the need, and second, that the foundation is designed to encourage scientific exploration on as broad a basis as possible beyond a few select fountains of knowledge. Not the least of the considerations calling for prompt enactment of aid to science is the close relationship of both the physical and social sciences to the projects envisioned in the President's Point IV.

Health Plan Hazards

President Truman's message of last week does not appear to have taken the country any closer to a Federal health insurance system. Chairman Thomas of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee says that hearings will be held but the bill will not come before the Senate for action until next year, unless Congress is convened in special session. Apparently the crush of business in the Senate is not the only cause for delay. Seven of the 13 members of the committee are said to be committed to the voluntary health plans sponsored by Senators Taft and Hill. Unless ways of resolving the controversy can be found, the effect of the President's sponsorship of compulsory health insurance may thus be to delay the enactment of a practical program for expansion of our medical resources.

Four parts of Mr. Truman's plan are so similar to the proposals already before Congress, with strong support in both parties, that they may be regarded as being noncontroversial. He pointed to the acute shortage of doctors and nurses. Certainly medical schools and medical students must have help of some kind if enough doctors to give the people complete medical care are to be trained. It should not be difficult for the Labor and Public Welfare Committee to work out a program for this purpose that would win general support. The same is true of grants for the construction of necessary hospitals. Undoubtedly the present program for this purpose should be expanded, and, as the President recommended, aid for health centers and various types of clinics may well be included.

Nor can there be any controversy over stepping up medical research. President Truman suggests also consolidation of various grants to the States for the support of public health activities, increasing the amounts of these grants and adjustment of the matching basis so that the poorer States would have a larger share of the funds. This proposal looks in the same direction as the Taft-Smith-Donnell bill. If the President would support a bill embodying these constructive provisions minus his controversial health insurance scheme, it would probably win overwhelming approval in both houses of Congress.

The President's own message makes clear the hazards of trying to set up a compulsory Federal health insurance system in the near future. "We cannot, of course," he told Congress, "achieve our goals fully until the system has been in operation for some time." But the levying of payroll taxes for health would give everyone a right to demand full medical care immediately. Any realistic attempt to meet these demands would probably require a compulsory redistribution of doctors. And even if all doctors were forced into the system, they could not possibly meet all the demands that would suddenly be made of them.

The President contemplates no such drastic measures. In an effort to make his plan palatable to the doctors, he assures them that they would remain free to come into the system or stay out. Since a large majority of the doctors are hostile to the plan, it is only reasonable to assume that many would continue their practice outside the insurance system, thus increasing the Government's difficulty in making good the pledge implicit in the collection of health insurance premiums.

Thus inaugurated prematurely, compulsory health insurance might take on the appearance of a gigantic fraud. The whole theory of health insurance, which has the advantage of throwing emphasis upon preventive medicine, could be discredited, and even the less ambitious voluntary plans and perhaps State experiments in this field might be discouraged. We cannot help thinking that a survey of what is feasible in this field should lead Congress to the enactment of a grants-in-aid health program without trying to pass judgment upon a compulsory insurance scheme that can have no practical application to present conditions.

Easing Credit Curbs

Less than two months after the Federal Reserve Board relaxed controls over installment credit, it has decreed further reductions in the amount of down payments and extension of time limits for completion of payments. At the same time the Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported a slight advance in its living cost index between February 15 and March 15, following a five-months' decline. However, this negligible upturn, attributable to a rise in food costs, is without significance so far as the Federal Reserve Board is concerned, since installment credit controls apply to durable goods, and subsidence of inflationary pressures in this field warrants a relaxation of restrictions.

Federal Reserve officials constantly emphasize the fact that the regulation of installment credit is a selective type of control that is of limited efficacy in influencing the total volume of bank credit. They regard it as a useful supplementary tool that can help to stabilize the economy, either by preventing an unsound or excessive expansion of a particular kind of credit or by discouraging an undesired contraction. It is by no means certain, however, that the recent and prospective easing of controls will have a comparably stimulating effect on the sale of durable goods. For in many cases actual terms of sales at present are more restrictive than those permitted under the regulations. "There are indications," says the Federal Reserve Bulletin, "that many retailers and financial institutions will maintain more stringent terms for the sale of furniture, radios, and television sets, and certain household appliances than those permitted under the recent modification"—meaning that of last March.

But, regardless of the effect on sales, liberalization of installment credit regulations will undoubtedly weaken opposition in Congress to an extension of the board's control powers, due to expire next June, by propitiating critics who contend that these regulations have been an important contributory cause of declines in production and sales of durable goods. It may well be that the board's action in the present instance was motivated as much by a desire to win political friends and influence Congress as by a hope of contributing to greater economic stability.

Homeopathic Remedy

Governor Lane has now signed an amendment to the "antisubversive" law recently enacted by the Maryland Legislature. The only effect of this amendment is to make the law applicable at once rather than five or six weeks hence, as was originally provided. The adoption of the amendment was the retort of the legislators to the efforts of opponents of the bill to circulate a petition for a popular referendum. Had the requisite number of signatures (10,000) been obtained for the petition before June 1, the provisions of the law could not have been enforced until after the general election of 1950.

Thus it is now a felony in Maryland to hold membership in an organization that a jury may decide is subversive under the rather broad and sweeping terms of the law. There is no doubt that the law, in the intention of its sponsors, is aimed primarily at Communists, obvert and cryptic, and especially at those who have succeeded in infiltrating the State civil service and the school system. However, the act does not designate the Communists by name; the reason for this, as set forth in the report of the Governor's commission headed by Frank B. Ober, is the practice of the party, where it has been outlawed by statute, of continuing its operations under some other name and usually beneath a facade of fellow travelers and "innocents."

Thus the bill defines as subversive any organization which is controlled, directly or indirectly, by a foreign power. It also defines as subversive conduct the teaching in any school in any way supported by State funds of any doctrine that would seek to alter the form of government in Maryland by any other means than those now constitutionally provided. It will be seen that, under a literal interpretation, the law could, especially in times of public passion or hysteria, be used as an instrument of persecution against many political philosophies besides communism, including some which are antithetical to it. Indeed, it is a question whether under a strict and impartial application of the law it would be possible to teach any political philosophy, even the principles set forth in the Declaration of Independence, which the Governor's commission has said, might be validly invoked against dictatorship or foreign tyranny, but not "under a constitutional government where civil liberties are preserved and where political changes are obtainable by constitutional means."

But even more dangerous than the loose and generalized language of the law is the provision for a special assistant attorney general who is to devote himself exclusively to the detection and prosecution of subversives. For if we admit the Communist danger in Maryland to be great enough to justify such drastic legislation as the Ober law, it follows that no one person could discharge all the duties that are imposed by it on the special assistant attorney general. He will obviously require the services of a special police, spies, and informers. Mr. Hall Hammond, the attorney general who is given the responsibility of appointing this special assistant, has been quite candid on this point. If such an official is needed, said Mr. Hammond, a State bureau of investigation, on the model of the FBI, is also needed.

Thus it seems to us the Maryland legislators may end by opening the way to what they are so desperately determined to prevent, that is the transformation of Maryland into a police state not wholly unlike those which now exist in countries beyond the Iron Curtain. It might have been worth their while to remember that the Communist secret police forces in such countries as Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria were reconstructed from anti-Communist police forces formerly existing there, just as the Tcheka was reconstructed from the Tsarist Okrana. Assuming that a Communist revolution could ever be possible in Maryland, the Communist regime would certainly find the police organization, which is an implicit corollary of the Ober bill, a valuable instrument for the consolidation of its power.

Atom Protection

I have been waiting to read of some reaction by the public to the statement made a few weeks ago by one of our Congressmen about protection against the A-bomb. This representative of the people of the United States, without any apparent compunction, stated that scientific findings on protective measures against an A-bomb explosion could not be released to the public, not even our school children, because people of other nations throughout the world might learn how to protect themselves.

Somewhere along the way, I have formed the opinion that the purpose of any future, possibly necessary, use of the A-bomb would be to wipe out quickly war producing industrial centers and thus put an end to any aggressor's war strength.

It has never occurred to me that anyone in the United States would object to the workers in these plants, or the people living in their vicinity, being able to protect themselves against the radiation and other horrible effects of an A-bomb explosion.

For one of our legislative leaders to go a step further in this inhuman statement and say that we must deny even our own children the benefit of protective knowledge is shameful to the worst degree. M. E. L.

Freedom Fair

I agree with the gentleman who argues that we should not have a Freedom Fair in Washington until we remove the black and white ghettos that fringe our Grecians city of false fronts and marble collars. However, I feel that other reasons for not holding such a fair are more pertinent and more alarming.

As a white Southerner I served four years in uniform. The men I met and served with were of all races and creeds. Prior to discharge one of my best buddies was a Negro veteran of this area who received the Purple Heart and Bronze Star for his service on the Burma Road. I may not invite this veteran to my home, I may not attend the same theater with him or eat at the same restaurant, indeed, I may not even meet with him and talk on a Washington street without idle gossips implying that our friendship is something evil and illegal.

Before we dare to have a Freedom Fair in the Nation's Capital I think we should make certain that freedom exists both north and south of the Potomac River. To do less would be to make a mockery of the term "democracy." JOHN C. ROGERS.

Vivisection Alternative

I should like to answer Mr. Stan Rosendorf's April 20 letter on vivisection.

My own husband attended a biology class in college, though he was not taking a medical course, in which a live dog was cut up without an anesthetic. This was, of course, of absolutely no value to a class neither interested in nor learning medicine.

For Mr. Rosendorf's further information, he has evidently failed to read a news item, carried by all papers recently, that an eminent British surgeon, a fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons, has successfully performed the much vaunted "blue baby" operation from a source of knowledge utterly unconnected to animal experimentation.

As to his last supposedly devastating inquiry whether members of the Antivivisection Society "might prefer that humans be used" since doctors admit that in the final result all experiment must be tried on humans to have any value, I for one, as a member of that society, would suggest that such members of this all-glorious human species as beat a little child to death, and gouge out its eyes alive, be allowed to expiate their crime against humanity by offering themselves for experiment.

"For heroism beyond and above the call of duty" we give in rare instances the Congressional Medal. Such acts on the part of dogs are daily cited in the news. In what we call the spiritual values many dogs outrank their human contemporaries—also their fine senses would seem to be more highly developed than ours, particularly in regard to danger.

Let's progress to the point of admitting that merely being born human does not necessarily connote intelligence, usefulness or the slightest spiritual awareness, and let's spend money to teach the prevention of disease by right health habits before we spend so much on the so-called cures invariably reversed by the medical profession every few years.

"Lonely Hearts" Clubs

Recent publicity concerning "lonely hearts" clubs have not presented the complete story, and I feel impelled to say something on the other side of the picture.

The danger of meeting a criminal through such a club is no greater than that involved in the more conventional social introductions. Such crimes as have lately adorned our news pages are not only the rare exception, but are due solely to the occasional phoney member who abuses the leniency of a club, and not to any ethical shortcoming of the club itself.

Most such clubs are making an honest effort to minister to this most neglected and belittled of the basic human needs. The reason their ads appear only in pulp magazines is because "respectable" publications are too prejudiced to print them.

"Myopic Gloucester"

With reference to your April 10 editorial, "Myopic Gloucester," I do not seek to justify the administration of that Virginia county's schools, but I do protest your pronouncing on the subject in evident ignorance of the local factors in the situation.

Gloucester is a typical rural Virginia county in that its affairs are loosely, but effectively, controlled by local banking and real estate interests. The purpose of this regime is not social betterment, but the protection of those interests with minimal public expenditures and minimal taxation.

The school issue has been raised in terms of discrimination against Negroes. All the schools of Gloucester, white as well as Negro, have long been a disgrace. The deficiencies of the white schools are not of concern to the Federal court, but are a key to the situation which you chose to discuss in your editorial.

A few years ago the wretched condition of the school system in general was made an issue by certain progressive white citizens. It being impossible to defend the case on its merits, the courthouse ring relied exclusively on a deliberate appeal to ignorance and prejudice. Because the Negro community supported the demand for school improvement and certain citizens of Northern origin participated in it, the ring "waved the bloody shirt." This smear technique served to rally the generality of white citizens in defense of the status quo. After this decisive defeat of general school reform the Negro community eventually turned to the Federal Court for relief on grounds of racial discrimination.

Meanwhile a survey by the State Department of Education had exposed the deplorable condition of all the schools and a new School Board had taken up the problem of general improvement. It has never been proposed, as you infer, to provide better white schools without simultaneous provision of better Negro schools.

One prerequisite of reform was to get rid of the incumbent superintendent, whose position had been rendered secure by the support not only of the county machine but also of the exclusively white community of watermen in lower Gloucester constituting an effective majority of the voters. A new superintendent has at last been chosen. But you now have an aroused community demanding better white schools.

The next requirement was money, which could be raised only by securing the electorate's approval of a bond issue. Progress was delayed because people refused to support a bond issue until assured that the old superintendent would not be retained. It was this delay that brought about the School Board's conviction for contempt of court, tempered by a wise judicial allowance of a further period of grace in which to make good.

As originally proposed and discussed, the bond issue was to have provided for improvement of all schools. Suddenly, for reasons never publicly explained, it was reduced in amount and limited to the improvement of Negro schools. It is observable that the reduction in amount would ease the financial burden on county real estate and the expenditure of the whole on Negro schools would have satisfied the Federal Court. But the predominantly white electorate was, in effect, invited to approve a proposition that Negroes should have not equal, but better schools than whites. The white voters, outraged by this proposition and frustrated in their own demand for better white schools, refused their consent.

It is obvious that Gloucester's present predicament is, indeed, the result of myopia in county administration, apathy in the electorate, and long-standing neglect of white as well as Negro schools.

But it should be recognized that the electorate is at long last aroused, that its demand for general school improvement is legitimate, and that the new school authorities desire to meet that demand. NEMESIS.

Matter Of Fact

American Japan

TOKYO.—This sleazy Oriental shantytown gives the traveler the odd sensation of being dragged back through five years in time and thousands of miles in space. For Tokyo is still remarkably like a big wartime city very far behind the battle lines—Algiers, say, after the fighting had moved up beyond Naples, or Naples after the fall of Rome, or Paris well after the Battle of the Bulge. The United States Army, in its rear echelon capacity, is everywhere.

Here are those dimly remembered, omnipresent, officious Army signs come back to life—"Off Limits," "For General Officers Only," "For Military Personnel Only." Here are the familiar mimeographed forms, which everyone fills out in triplicate, and no one ever looks at again. Here are the well-pressed GIs, and the pink-faced military police in their white helmets, trying to look Prussian but never quite succeeding.

Here, too, are the generals, busy and authoritative, and the colonels, just a shade less busy and authoritative, and the bustling majors, bulging comfortably fore and aft. Here are the salutes and the jeeps and the staff cars and all the outward trappings of a big city in the embrace of the military. And here is the familiar backdrop, the scarred city itself, with the gray, shifting, shabby mass of its people, scurrying endlessly about their mysterious business.

THE VISIBLE EVIDENCE of the Army's hold on the city is confirmed by the invisible facts. There are American civilians here, thousands of them, from bobby soxers to experts on the migration of fish. Some of these civilians have influenced the course of the occupation—but only at second remove.

For no civilian (except occasional visiting firemen) has direct access to the supreme source of all power in Japan, General of the Army Douglas MacArthur. General MacArthur is tightly surrounded by his old subordinates and intimates of the Bataan days. The rare newcomers to this charmed circle wear a uniform and usually a West Point ring. The charmed circle makes certain that civilians are kept in their place.

Even the State Department men are huddled together in a powerless "diplomatic section" under the direct orders of the military. They send cables to Washington only through Army "channels," and at the Army's pleasure. On more than one occasion the Army has not been pleased, and cables to the State Department have been briskly stopped at the source.

More than any other city in the world since the war ended, this is the Army's city. This, indeed, is the Army's country. Here the Army reigns supreme, unchallenged, with all the Army's peculiar faults and virtues.

Thus, the men with Army rank have become a special caste within the huge American community. But the American community has itself become, with all the best will in the world, a special caste—a new Japanese ruling class, as remote, isolated, all powerful and immensely rich as the "above-the-clouds dwellers" of the Kania Kura Shogunate.

BY AMERICAN STANDARDS, this new ruling class lives only the familiar life of prosperous American suburbia—golf, cocktail parties, Saturday night hops (in the ballroom of Frank Lloyd Wright's famous Imperial Hotel), Coca-Cola and steak dinners. Yet the gulf between this comfortable existence and the sullen Japanese struggle to live is as striking as the contrast between the sleek new cars of the rulers and the ancient, charcoal-burning jalopies which are the privileged possession of the richest of the ruled.

There are more subtle distinctions. Military regulations, which appear to be modeled on those of a Southern Army camp, have created an almost unbridgeable chasm between the "indigenous personnel" and the American ruling class. The meeting places—restaurants, hotels, bars—of each are forbidden to the other. If an American, civilian or otherwise, is found visiting a Japanese friend after 11 o'clock at night, he may be hauled off by the watchful military police to face charges.

Japanese cabinet ministers come to the offices of subordinate American officials for "advice," which has virtually the force of law. Twentieth Century American Japan has a little in common with Nineteenth-Century British India.

All this is partly understandable. A military occupation is by definition run by the military. Conquerors cannot be expected to live in misery to spare the feelings of the conquered. Only a fool would propose the total withdrawal of American military power or civil authority from Japan. Only a fool would deny that the occupation of Japan has some remarkable achievements to its credit. Yet the way in which Japan is now being governed by the United States is profoundly politically unhealthy. It will become more so with every passing month. Perhaps no better way can be found. But it is worth looking for one.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Whither Truman?

THERE IS good reason to think that the political tide is turning in favor of Mr. Truman. That is not because he has turned the tide by anything he has said or done. It is because the business cycle is again entering a phase which comports with the political interests of the Democratic Party. The disinflation and the recession, which Mr. Truman did not foresee during the campaign, will, as they develop, make increasingly plausible and popular the large and varied promises to so many groups and localities and regions which he made during the campaign.

LIPPMANN

Mr. Truman did not plan it that way. He thought he was fighting inflation. But the kind of program which he inherited from Roosevelt works best against a deflation. There is a deflation, and the recession which it is causing, will turn out to be a political windfall for Mr. Truman and the New and the Fair Deal Democrats. So what Mr. Truman has lost as an economic prophet who guessed wrong about the business cycle will be made up by what he stands to gain as a Democratic politician.

THE UPS and downs of the Truman Administration, leaving out foreign affairs, can best be explained, it seems to me, by remembering that the Democratic Party which Roosevelt organized is a coalition of farmers, wage earners, business men, and promoters of public projects. It was brought together during the great depression of 1929 and it is held together by the use of public money in the form of loans, subsidies, grants-in-aid, and Federal expenditures. This party flourishes politically when economic conditions call for the expenditure and investment of public funds—when reflation, not disinflation or deflation is the order of the day. It is not a party of financial austerity and monetary respectability—that is to say, of hard money, balanced budgets, thrift, and economy.

When Mr. Truman became President in 1945 he was told by the economists whom he inherited from Roosevelt that the end of the war would mean a depression. When the war contracts were cancelled, the war industries shut down, the Army demobilized, there would be, he was told, unemployment and bad business. Mr. Truman made his political plans accordingly. There was to be at once another large installment of the New Deal with the Government backing wage increases and large Federal expenditures. But Mr. Truman's economic advisers had guessed wrong. Instead of a depression, there was an inflation which called for all the measures of austerity that are so alien to the New Deal philosophy and program. As a result Mr. Truman, who was in the wrong phase of the business cycle, got into fearful political troubles, lost control of his Congress, and got the famous Eightieth Congress.

THIS WAS the period when Mr. Truman's prestige sank to low ebb, when he was very nearly denied the nomination by his own party—in the last analysis because he did not know how to lead a party, which is committed to an inflationary program, in a time when the country was suffering from inflation.

Nevertheless, he was elected—almost certainly as we can now see in retrospect—because the farmers and the wage earners were more afraid of a bust than of the boom, and were already apprehensive by the late summer and autumn that a recession might be coming. Mr. Truman in his campaign had played it both ways—making resounding speeches about how he was going to fight inflation and resounding speeches promising all sorts of things that would be highly inflationary.

WHEN THE Eighty-first Congress met, he continued to play it both ways. He had a program to combat inflation—new taxes, restriction of credit and a system of price controls, allocation, and even rationing. He also had a program to combat deflation—new social welfare measures of all kinds at home and Point Four, the Bold New Program, as well as European rearmament abroad.

During February and March the Administration did not know which of the two opposite ways to go. While business was receding, Mr. Truman was still supporting his economists who were saying that the inflation would get worse. But Mr. Truman was also supporting the inflation measures of the Fair Deal. During this period of hesitation, not sure what decision to make as to the main direction, the Administration stalled. It let Congress get itself well snarled up over civil rights, the rules of the Senate, and the filibuster, and Mr. Truman went off to Florida to think it over.

WHEN HE returned, it was quite evident that deflation, not inflation, was dominant and that a recession, a fall in farm prices and increasing unemployment were on the way. Because of the decline in corporate and personal incomes the deficit for this quarter (April, May, June) may be two billion, and for the next fiscal year it may be more than five billion, perhaps nearer eight billion.

Now if Mr. Truman were still holding to his January doctrine, he would be insisting on larger taxes and lower expenditures. But Mr. Truman is almost certainly now revising his doctrine. Now that there is a recession, he will listen to the authentic New Dealers in his party.

IT IS a reasonably safe prediction that within the near future the Administration will work out a program for the farmers, for the wage earners, and for public works in various parts of the country, for public investment at home and abroad, and for incentives to private investment—all of it resting not upon a balanced budget but upon a policy of deficit financing.

The anti-inflationary measures in the original Truman program will be discarded. The dragon he goes out to slay will not be the boom but the bust, and the second great phase of the New Deal will in fact be inaugurated.

THAT, apart from what anyone likes or dislikes about it, is, I venture to think, what will result from the fact that the Democrats have a great majority in Congress as the business cycle enters the phase of deflation.

House Probers Sit Today on Reds in UEW

The House Un-American Activities Committee starts hearings today on how far Communists may have dug into the American Slav Congress and the CIO-United Electrical Workers Union.

They are the first hearings the committee has billed in the present Congress.

Meantime the committee maintained its continuing hunt for spies after turning its spotlight Saturday on the story of a former Polish military attache that espionage rings were directed from the Polish Embassy here.

Three witnesses described as "friendly" are slated for today. The identy of one was kept secret for purposes of protection. He is described as a former Communist who turned against the Communist Party.

The other two are Judge Blair F. Gunther of the Common Pleas Court in Pittsburgh and John Sherman, also of Pittsburgh, a lawyer for several UEW locals.

Gunther is of Polish descent and was the first chairman of the board when the American Slav Congress was organized. The congress was founded in the fall of 1941 and held its first convention in Detroit the following year. Gunther got out in 1944.

Press 'Gravy Train' Jolts Illinois

Springfield, Ill., April 24 (Spl.).—Political Illinois still seethed today with the revelation that editors and publishers of at least 32 newspapers had been on the State payroll.

The story, uncovered April 14 by Roy J. Harris of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and George Thiem of the Chicago Daily News, revealed that the editors and publishers had collected more than $300,000 from the State between January, 1943, and November, 1948. In some cases it was shown that the editors actually did more or less work at the Statehouse. But, wrote Harris:

"Chief function of many of the others was to print canned editorials and news stories lauding the Republican State administration."

"Gravy Train" Jobs

Most of the editors, Green reported, held "gravy train" jobs such as "field investigators" and "messenger clerks." Since the defeat of Republican Gov. Dwight H. Green by Adlai E. Stephenson last November, the majority have been eliminated from the State payroll, Harris wrote. He added that those still there were "presumably" being weeded out.

In addition, Harris reported, 10 relatives of Illinois editors and publishers drew $100,000 in pay from State jobs. He said most of these "apparently worked for their pay."

The revelations followed two weeks of diligent checking by Harris and Thiem over State payrolls and comparing what they found with lists of Illinois editors and publishers. They found 33 names connected with 32 newspapers, chiefly downstate weeklies and small town dailies.

Also Got Expense Account

Harris wrote that the "largest collector" in the investigator-messenger-clerk class was William R. McCauley, copublisher of the Olney Daily Mail, who got $41,281 between 1941 and 1949. As an investigator for the State auditor he also had use of a State-owned automobile and a "generous" expense account.

The St. Louis reporter quoted McCauley as explaining that he "made frequent trips as part of his assignment in connection with school funds and real estate matters."

In one case, Harris wrote, both the editor and publisher of a newspaper held "investigator" jobs. He named these as Paul W. Gibson, editor, and Charles H. Clifton, publisher of the Clay County Republican, who received totals of $11,567 and $3660 respectively.

Others Named

Other editors and publishers named by Harris, with the jobs they held and amounts they received were:

George B. Shaw, editor of the Dixon Evening Telegraph; assistant commerce commissioner, $21,899.

Walter E. Smith, publisher of the weekly Freeburg Tribune; Agriculture Department investigator, $1628.

Harold J. Cruger, publisher of the Elmhourst Leader and Press; former State printing superintendent, at "about $5500 a year."

Herschel J. Blazer, editor of the Aledo Times-Record; former superintendent of multigraphing in the printing division, at "about $5000 a year."

Victor L. Smith, editor, Robinson Argus; Revenue Department investigator, $17,539.

Frederick E. Mueller, publisher, Port Byron Globe; Revenue investigator, $14,552.

J. Norris Vallow, publishers, Kinmundy Express; Revenue oil inspector, $14,378.

H. K. Pike, publisher, Patoka Register; chief clerk at Vandalia State Farm, $11,211.

H. B. Smith, editor, Newman Independent; Highway Division investigator, $12,372.

Publisher Got $10,833

Verle V. Kramer, publisher, Warsaw Bulletin; Commerce Commission investigator, $10,833.

Sam Little, publisher, Hillsboro Journal; Highway Division investigator, $10,747.

Charles E. Feirich, publisher, Metropolis News; Education Department investigator, $9225.

Richard M. Feingeld, publisher, Henry News-Republic; Highway investigator, $8976.

George W. Miller, editor, Columbia Star; clerk in Auditor's office, $6300.

Messenger-Clerk

Lewis A. Randolph, editor, Macomb Journal; highway messenger-clerk, $5500.

Orville Ryan, publisher, Ashkum Journal; field representative, public instruction, $5025.

M. A. Curley, publisher, Zeigler News; highway messenger-clerk, $4950.

Aaron E. Vandever, editor, Nokomis Free Press; highway messenger-clerk, no total shown.

John O. Denson, publisher, Minonk News-Dispatch, veterans' commission messenger-clerk, no total shown.

Bernard L. White, editor, Watseka Republican; auditor's clerk, $3850.

Labor Investigator

William D. Magill, publisher, Dewitt County Observer; Labor Department investigator, $3760.

Steve Choisser, editor, Benton Evening News; highway messepger-clerk, $2800.

William E. Beck, jr., publisher, Whiteside Sentinel; auditor's clerk, $.250.

Lyman E. Smith, publisher, New Berlin Bee and Pleasant Plains Press; treasurer's investigator, $975.

Public Works Laborer

Werner F. Hamilton, publisher, McLeansboro March of Progress, public works laborer, $850.

In a few cases, Harris reported, State payments constituted "only pin money."

In 1947, Harris said, Arthur R. Lorch, editor of the Ogle County Reporter, got $50 as a Treasurer's investigator; Harry J. Wible, publisher of the Mount Pulaski Times-News, was paid $100 by the Treasurer, and W. H. Thomas, of the Mount Morris Index, collected $150 from the same office.

Two other newspaper men, Harris wrote, had previously been disclosed as having drawn State pay. He said they were Robert L. Stubbs, managing editor of the Illinois State Register of Springfield, who received $5620 as a Highway messenger-clerk, and Gomer Bath, Peoria Star columnist, who collected $5800 as a Labor Department investigator.

Miss Coplon Spy Trial Starts Today

Judith Coplon, 27-year-old former Justice Department employe accused of handing confidential Government papers over to a Russian agent, will go on trial at 10 a. m. today in District Court.

Miss Coplon was indicted here March 16 on charges of copying and taking documents from the Justice Department files from about December 10, 1948, to March 4, 1949.

She is also under indictment in New York along with Valentine A. Gubitchev, 32, suspended Soviet employe of the United Nations. They are charged with conspiring to obtain secret Government data.

Miss Coplon and the Russian were arrested in New York March 4. FBI agents who trailed the couple through New York said that Miss Coplon was carrying intelligence reports about spy activities in her purse when she was arrested.

The vivacious brunette pleaded innocent when she was arraigned here on March 21. She has been free under $30,000 bail—$20,000 posted in New York and $10,000 here. Gubitchev has remained in jail in default of $100,000 bail.

Miss Coplon's attorney, Archibald Palmer of New York, has indicated that the defense will seek to prove that she was merely collecting material for a book. Justice Department prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr., who prosecuted Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars, will present the Government's case. Gubitchev and Miss Coplon will be brought to trial in New York after the trial here.

Jobless Veteran Payments Cost U. S. 3.4 Billion

By the United Press

Jobless veterans and those who found it hard to make a go of their own businesses have cost the Government nearly $3,400,000,000 since the end of the war.

And, Veterans Administration officials said yesterday the final bill may be "substantially higher" by the time the unemployment program set up by the GI Bill of Rights runs out next July 25.

After that date—unless Congress changes the law—only veterans discharged since July 25, 1947, will be eligible for GI jobless benefits. That would rule out most of the 15 million veterans now eligible.

Services in New Church

Members of Shipley Terrace Presbyterian Church yesterday met for the first time in their new church home, a basement at 2503 Southern ave. se. turned over to them by Paul T. Stone.

Sponsored by the Presbytery of Washington City, the church has been meeting in the homes of members since it was organized in October. Dr. Ralph K. Merker, stated clerk of the presbytery of Washington City, dedicated the room at services last evening.

At the present time the church holds children's services in the morning, young people's meeting at 6:45 p. m. and evening services at 8 p. m. It is asking the denomination to assign a full time minister to handle the Shipley Terrace church.

Services are conducted by the following ministers: first Sunday of the month, the Rev. Robert S. Chamberlain, pastor of District Heights Presbyterian Church; second Sunday, the Rev. James C. Fahl, pastor of Metropolitan Presbyterian; third Sunday, the Rev. Lester V. Bauguess, pastor of Garden Memorial Presbyterian Church; fourth Sunday, the Rev. William Purcell, pastor of Congress Heights Presbyterian Church, and fifth Sunday, Dr. Merker.

$100 Will Be Paid

Has the head of any government in the United Nations, except President Truman, or any United Nations officials of any government ever made any postwar published statement for a sufficient police force for the United Nations to maintain world peace or to control atomic energy for only peaceful purposes?

If so, $100 will be paid for the first copy of it sent to the United States Federation of Justice, 1450 Girard St. N.W., Washington, D. C. (with a translation if not in the English language).

This is part of an educational undertaking by the Federation of Justice to support peace enforcement declarations by the President and one hundred American bipartisan leaders. Any such statements by other government heads or United Nations officials would be helpful contributions to that support.

National Council and Directors of the Federation are: Roscoe Pound, Dean Emeritus Harvard Law School; Sanford Bates, former Director of U. S. Bureau of Prisons; Dr. John Dewey, Columbia University; Dr. James M. Hepbron, Director Baltimore Criminal Justice Commission; August Vollmer, former President International Association of Chiefs of Police; Ewing Cockrell, former prosecutor and judge Missouri Circuit Court, now president of the Federation, and others.

The Federation was incorporated 1928 in the District of Columbia for a perpetual term as an educational body, with the endorsements of Chief Justice Taft, Vice President Dawes, Speaker Longworth, the four Majority and Minority Leaders of Congress, Charles Curtis and Joe T. Robinson and Representatives John Q. Tilson and Finis J. Garrett, and practicing lawyers John W. Davis and Elihu Root.

One on the Aisle—

Either Too Long Or Too Short

By Richard L. Coe

ONE DRAWBACK of our factory-belt production and exhibition set-up is that the length of short subjects and feature films is strictly prescribed.

The average short runs from 6 to 18 minutes. Feature pictures average about 80 minutes. This means that when the theater manager gets around to forming his program he's got very little leeway for the unusual.

Consequently, many feature films are padded to their decided disadvantage and short subjects are all too often something to be avoided.

Tonight, in the first of a monthly series, the Washington World Affairs Center will be showing a picture that's unlikely, for several reasons, to pop up on the bill of an average film house. It's a 45-minute essay by Burgess Meredith on England today, "A Yank Comes Back.'

This picture was not made to be shown in America, though it will interest and amuse many. It's got a bemused quality that sometimes, for American tastes, verges on the precious, but its complete disregard for accepted film length gives it the informal charm Meredith was seeking. "A Yank Comes Back" is a sequel, five years later, to a film Meredith made for the armed forces with outstanding success during the war. He goes about it in leisurely style, roaming about the country, pulling little jokes with his camera that cameras have been pulling since they were invented.

His conclusions, by the way, jibe convincingly with the report from England by Frank Gervasi in yesterday's paper. You see people working hard without so many of the luxuries we take for granted, but you sense they're proud of what they've done. "The British Lion should have been down," concludes Meredith, "but it certainly isn't."

But, as I say, the most striking aspect of this picture is its unconventional length. It has always struck me as absurd that the "March of Time" should presume to tackle some of its complex subjects in precisely 18 minutes. MOT does remarkably well considering their time limitations, but they too often result in pat, surface generalities, carefully avoiding the heart of the matter.

That our short subjects have so constricted themselves is certainly one of the more depressing aspects of the movie world.

"A Yank Comes Back" will be shown tonight at 8 o'clock in the Interior Auditorium, 18th and C sts. on a program that further includes a new United Nations short, "A Battle for Bread," and two of Canada's always splendid documentaries, one on Toronto's international trade fair, the other picturing the St. Lawrence River in technicolor. The Washington World Affairs Center promises regular programs throughout the summer, with admission free to the public.

JOHN MASON BROWN, who's made drama criticism a fine art and a big business with the whole country as his preserve, this afternoon at 4 gives his annual talk for the benefit of the Frontier Nursing Services of Kentucky. . . . Louisville-born the "Seeing Things" critic makes this a yearly must on his schedule; the Mayflower Ballroom is his lecture hall and if there are any tickets left, Mrs. Reeves Lewis may be able to fit you in at HObart 2121 . . . If you've been watching him on his televised "Critic at Large," you'll know that he's as lively to watch as he is to listen to and hang the preposition.

MR. BROWN will, one trusts, refer to the fact that he's talking in a city which has no living theater . . . This is the thirty-ninth week in which the Capital of Western Civilization has had no living drama on its sole living stage . . . Baltimore this week again has two theaters open . . . Here, such as they are, are the bills: at Ford's a revival of the 25-year-old mystery comedy, "The Cat and the Canary," with Donald Buka, Ian Keith, Anthony Rivers and Romberta Sherritt; at the Maryland, "Anna Lucasta," Philip Yordan's drama now in its fifth national tour.

DORIS DAY, who'll be in Bob Hope's company at Constitution Hall Thursday afternoon and night, will be chanting with the bandsman who waxed the record that put her on the map, "Sentimental Journey." . . . Leading his band and Doris to Columbia hitdom then was Les Brown and when Doris jined up with Hope this year, who was the man with the baton, but her old boss, Les . . . Bob's mighty pleased about this. . . . Don't forget that's a 4:30 matinee Thursday, which gives us laboring classes a chance to see the show and be abed as usual by 9 o'clock.

GIUSEPPE DE LUCA is another of the week's visitors, the great baritone whose acting was a Metropolitan standby for the generation before the war . . . De Luca will be singing in Georgetown University's Gaston Hall Thursday night at 8:30 for the benefit of Casa Italiana funds sought by Il Circolo Italiano, the lively student organization of the School of Foreign Service . . . De Luca protested against the Mussolini regime by silence throughout the war and broke it only after VJ-Day at the Rome Opera . . . Also on the program will be Jessica Dragonette, whose soprano needs no introduction, and Vera Franceschi, 22-year-old pianist, whose Washington debut this will be . . . Seats for Thursday night's concert are on sale at Brentano's and the AAA.

Standard Oil (New Jersey) Makes Record

New York, April 24 (AP). — Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) today reported 1948 total income of $3,332,187,000, a new record high, and an increase of 40 per cent over the previous year.

"The increase was due to a greater volume of products sold and to higher market prices," the company said.

Jersey Standard, one of the world's foremost petroleum factors, added that costs and other deductions also increased 40 per cent over 1947.

Salaries, wages and employe benefits, which represent more than half of all operating, selling and administrative expenses, reached an all-time high of $573,450,000, the company said.

Purchases of crude products and other merchandise from other suppliers also reached a new high of $1,386,248,000.

Consolidated net earnings were $365,605,000, equal to $12.44 a share, for 1948, compared with $268,627,000 or $9.83 a share the previous year.

The statement showed capital expenditures by consolidated companies for exploration, drilling, pipeline projects, super-tankers and refining and marketing facilities were at a new high of $529,415,000. Previous record expenditures were $425,667,000 in 1947.

Eugene Holman, president, and Chairman F. W. Abrams told shareholders demands for petroleum products pprobably will be higher in 1949 than last year.

They based their outlook on such items as anticipated bigger demand by motorists for gasoline, by home owners for heating oil and by railroads for Diesel fuel

They added, however, that despite the prospect for a higher volume of business, earnings probably would be lower in 1949, principally because of lower product prices.

Gemmill Is Elected To Holy Name Post

Clarkson Gemmill, Washington advertising executive, was elected president of the Holy Name Union of the Archdiocese of Washington at its annual convention yesterday in St. Jerome's Parish Auditorium in Hyattsville.

More than 700 Holy Name members from four Maryland counties and the District attended the all-day session. A mass at 10:30 a. m. was attended by the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington.

Gemmill, who lives at 6625 Piney Branch rd. nw., was elected to succeed Lawrence J. McDonnell, a Washington real estate man, who has presided for the past year.

The business meeting heard reports from sectional presidents of the group and adopted several resolutions. These included resolutions proclaiming the group's filial devotion to Pope Pius XII and complimenting William H. Corbin, a Washington lawyer, who was selected last year to receive the Holy Name's Verchelli Medal, awarded each year to the outstanding Catholic layman in the United States.

Participants in the convention program, besides District representatives, included members from Prince Georges, Montgomery, Charles and St. Marys counties. The membership represents Holy Name orders embracing more than 21,000 members.

Postlude

Piano Recital By Meyers Thrilling

By Richard Keith

Emerson Meyer's piano recital yesterday afternoon at the Phillips Gallery drew an exceptionally large audience, completely filling all the main floor rooms.

The program itself, which included such well-worn items as the Beethoven Opus 90 Sonata, the Ravel Sonatine, and 12 Chopin Etudes, was uniformly conventional. Mr. Meyers' interpretations, however, were intelligent and carefully studied. The formal aspects of the Beethoven and Ravel pieces were clearly defined.

Playing 12 Chopin Etudes, especially Opus 12, one after another, is an almost superhuman task; few pianists have the physical endurance to make it through to the bitter end. Yesterday Mr. Meyers, who is a powerful player, made it successfully to the eleventh hurdle. His performance of the bombastic tenth study in octives was quite thrilling. Fatigue took its toll in the eleventh and twelfth.

Although often indifferent to nuance, and inclined to pound, Meyers is a sound and often exciting performer.

W-L Choral Groups Gives Mature Concert

The Washington-Lee Choral Group, one of the most outstanding high school choruses in the country, gave a concert last evening at the National Gallery.

Florence Booker, director, selected a program notable for its lack of the trashy items ordinarily encountered at such concerts. Most of the music included was first class.

As for the quality of singing, it should be said that one rarely finds such maturity, evenness and flexibility even in groups of older singers. Attacks were almost always precise, diction clear, and the interpretations expressive but in good taste.

New Type Plane To Detect Enemy Subs Designed

Bethpage, Long Island, April 24 (NYHT.).—The Grumman Engineering Corp. has designed a new aircraft known as the Guardian, which will have the specific mission of seeking out and destroying enemy submarines. The Navy has just ordered the plane into production.

Photographs show one model equipped with a huge radar blister beneath its fuselage, while the other has the customary bomb-bay fittings. This arrangement indicates that two planes will operate together as hunter-killer pairs, with one carrying highly sensitive radar capable of detecting at considerable distances the breathing tubes of submerged schnorkel submarines. The other will carry depth charges and other antisubmarine devices for attack after the undersea craft is located.

Berlin Blockade Photo Exhibit Opens Today

The dramatic story of the Berlin blockade and the United States-English airlift will be portrayed in a photographic exhibit opening today at the Library of Congress.

The pictures, comprising 124 photographs taken by Henry Ries, of the New York Times, between June and December, 1948, will be on exhibit for a month.

2000 Attend Meeting Of Maryland Society

Annapolis, Md., April 24 (AP).—About 2000 delegates from all parts of the State gathered here today for the annual convention of the Holy Name Society of Maryland.

Host to the convention was St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, where the lay and clergy representatives this morning attended a solemn high mass.

The Rev. John H. Schultz, of Holy Redeemer College, 210 New York ave. nw., Washington, was celebrant at the mass, and Archbishop Francis P. Keough of Baltimore spoke before the confirmation of 276 parishioners.

The archbishop later addressed a business session of the convention on behalf of the Catholic charity appeal to establish a new orphanage and home for the aged in Baltimore.

Other speakers included the Rev. Ignatius Smith of Catholic University, Washington.

Mass Is Celebrated For Postoffice Group

More than 100 members of the Postoffice Holy Name Society yesterday attended the society's tenth annual communion mass at St. Aloysius Church, North Capitol and I sts. nw. Celebrant was the Rev. William A. Harrigan, cpiritual director of the Postoffice branch.

A breakfast was served at the Continental Hotel after the mass. Msgr. John K. Cartwright, pastor of St. Matthew's Cathedral, was the speaker. Reelected officers of the branch were: president, Matthew P. Carroll; vice president, Thomas Jenkins; secretary, Harry Miller; treasurer, Joseph Donohue; marshal, Paul Stanton, and retreat captain, Walter Murphy.

creased will be the subject of a separate study by the association.

2. More than 50 per cent of the cases handled in District Court were disposed of by a plea of guilty.

3. More than 68 per cent of these cases were disposed of in less than six weeks.

4. Per capita cost of inmates in District correctional institutions has increased 180 per cent in 10 years, from $.94 per day to $2.75 per day. The cost, however, is less than in many institutions operated under the Federal Government.

Worst in Three Precincts

The greatest number of serious offenses occurred last year in Precincts 2, 1 and 13, an area bounded roughly by the Mall and Euclid sts. nw., and North Capitol and 15th sts. nw.

Approximately 45 per cent of all serious crimes occurred in this area, estimated at one twelfth of the total area of the District.

The association emphasized that this same area is highest in rates of venereal disease, tuberculosis, infant mortality and other "socially undesirable phenomen." The area is "notorious for its substandard housing, lack of recreational facilities and lack of an aggressive program for community improvement."

"It should be reiterated that crime, as well as disease, knows no social or geographical boundaries, that an infested area is of concern to the entire community, and that aggressive measures for prevention are the cheapest form of control," the report said.

Thefts Called "Astounding"

The association reported "a rather astounding loss to District citizens" in its review of stolen property. During 1948, the total value of property stolen amounted to $2,525,579, of which only $1,275,964, or 50.5 per cent was recovered by police.

Nationally, the Federal Bureau of Investigation reported that 59.9 per cent of all stolen property was recovered during 1948.

The association recommended that the District police force be increased by 180 officers to step up crime solution and property recovery, and to bring the District force up to the national average for cities of more than 250,000 population. The Police Department requested 196 new employes for fiscal 1949, but the budget submitted to Congress included a request for only 49.

Report on Sex Offenses

The problem of the sex offender in the District has "reached serious proportions," the association reported. Of a total of 484 sex offenses reported, the victims in 185, or 38 per cent of the cases, were a person 17 years of age or under. Ninety-eight of the victims were 15 or under.

Police cleared 7568, or 58 per cent of the 13,029 serious felonies reported during 1948, as against 4126, or 51.3 per cent of the 8002 cases reported during 1947. Cases were cleared primarily by arrest, but also by death of complainant, complainant leaving jurisdiction, complainant requesting no prosecution, or complainant refusing to cooperate.

The solution of 58 per cent of the serious crimes reported "compare very favorably with the percentage of solution in other metropolitan communities," according to the WCJA report.

The average daily population in the District Jail rose to a new high of 730 during 1948, the report said.

Drunks Set New Record

The jail population problem is closely associated with the problem of alcoholism. Of a total population during 1948 of 17,644, almost 12,000 were jailed for intoxication, a new high.

"While the problem of the chronic alcoholic is obtaining theoretical recognition as a medical problem, as a practical expedient the jail is still utilized to a great extent as a dumping ground for these chronic offenders, with little or nothing possible in the way of therapeutic rehabilitation."

Another "acute" problem confronting District Jails, is the number of recidivists, persons who have been previous inmates of penal institutions.

More than 79 per cent of the total 1948 jail population had been in jail before.

More than 88 per cent of those jailed for intoxication had been jailed for intoxication before.

The association complimented the Department of Corrections for the "excellent performance of its custodial function," noting that only 5 persons escaped from the five institutions in 1948, compared to 16 escapes in 1945, 33 in 1946, and 10 in 1947.

The strengthened rehabilitation program for inmates was noted by the association, but the addition of more personnel specifically trained and employed for rehabilitation was recommended.

Million More In Contracts For Road Due

An additional million dollars in contracts will be let in the next two or three weeks for the Washington-Baltimore Expressway, Robert M. Reindollar, chairman of the Maryland State Roads Commission, said last night.

It was announced Saturday that $7,600,000 in construction contracts already have been awarded.

Actually the contracts have been awarded piecemeal over a period of time, Reindollar said, and will carry the dual-line expressway from the Baltimore City line to the Hanover rd., a distance of slightly more than 8 miles.

Rights-of-way for the next step, linking the new route from Hanover rd. with Jessup, Md., 4.23 miles away, have been cleared, it was said, and only the awarding of contracts remains.

The route is designed to provide an easily accessible approach to the new international airport at Friendship, Md.

Plans for the Maryland stretch call for two 24-foot reinforced concrete lanes separated by a parkway 113 feet wide, with a widening to two 40-foot lanes in the section approaching Baltimore.

Farmer Kills 2, Wounds 3, Then Turns Gun on Self

Abilene, Kans., April 24 (U.P.)—A berserk farmer killed a sheriff and a sheriff's deputy and wounded three persons today with an automatic shotgun, then wounded himself fatally.

Sheriff Elmer F. Davis, 38, and his brother, Milton, 58, a deputy, were killed instantly when Charles Rush, 65, fired point blank at them as they stepped onto the front porch of his farmhouse.

After those shots, neighbors heard another blast inside the house. Police believed that Rush, after setting the house ablaze with gasoline, shot himself. The house burned to the ground in a matter of minutes.

The bodies of Rush and the two officers were burned beyond recognition.

Earlier, police said, Rush had shot his brother-in-law, Mervin Franks, 54, with whom he lived; their housekeeper, Mrs. Mae Pettriess, 59, and a neighbor, Fred Yuhl, 59, who came to investigate.

Publishers See No Signs Of Depression

New York, April 24 (NYHT).—If a serious business decline is in the offing, its signposts have escaped the attention of the publishers gathering here for the meeting of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

An informal survey today showed they are agreed on the following points:

The American people are overwhelmingly in favor of the Atlantic Pact.

Unemployment, where it exists, is of minor proportions.

Bank deposits and savings remain high—in some places higher than ever.

Farmers and ranchers have used their boom profits to pay off loans and take up mortgages.

Crop prospects generally are good, despite the hard winter in the West.

The cost of producing newspapers is stretching the business thin, especially in the case of smaller papers.

The price peak has been passed, but price decline in no way shows signs of tobogganing.

Labor, especially in the West, is beginning to realize a dead golden goose lays no golden eggs. The employer is getting a higher return in work for his dollar than he did two years ago.

The publishers were uniformly interested in television and saw it as a competitor of the book and magazine business but not of the newspaper business.

Tests Show Gun Not Death Weapon In Tenor Slaying

Atlanta, April 24 (AP).—The FBI in Washington was unable to identify a Belgian-made automatic pistol today as the death weapon in the slaying of Metropolitan Opera tenor John Garris.

Police Chief Herbert Jenkins said that left the killing of Garris just as much a mystery as ever.

The pistol was found in possession of Grover (Tojo) Pulley, a paroled North Carolina murderer, arrested in Clinton, S. C. Police said Pulley admitted being in Atlanta Wednesday, the day of the slaying.

Arlington Farms 'G' Girls Hold 'Eviction Party' Open House

The 560 Government girls of Arlington Farms' Nebraska Hall used the occasion of the Hall's sixth anniversary yesterday to display the chic nests from which the Government is going to evict them come September 30 because it's losing money.

For the first time in six years, male visitors were officially unleashed to roam, under the guiding hands of resident hostesses, beyond the front lobby and adjoining sitting rooms.

The visitors, many of them servicemen, saw enough to make them understand the girls' unanimous reluctance to leave their cosy diggings.

For in Nebraska Hall, the dreary ingredients of a mammoth barracks had been transformed into a wholesome, livable atmosphere which few of the girls believe they can find elsewhere for the same money.

To old barracks dwellers, the feminine touch was unmistakable. Quiet pastels, in gray, green or pink brightened the raw wooden walls of the bedrooms. Flowered chintz drapes stretched across the windows, with matching pillow covers and hassocks enhancing the decor.

Pinup boys (usually in street clothes, never in bathing suits) occasionally dotted the walls. Magazines, the plushy, 50-cent, feminine kind, were neatly arranged on desks or in corner anterooms. There were no comic books.

But the greatest contrast to an old barracks veteran was in the dainty, multi-colored unmentionables spread out to dry around the 21 wings of the two-story structure eyefilling evidence that this was no GI hovel, indeed.

One young soldier, a starched, slick-haired pixie, threw cold water on one of the inspecting tours by reaching up behind a doorway molding and wiping his hand across it. His hand, when he withdrew it, was sooty.

Nevertheless, it was generally agreed that the inspection was a success, especially after the inspecting party was bribed with iced yellow punch and cookies, served by hostesses in the main lobby.

Humphrey Asks Senators To Block Evictions

In a weekend letter to his fellow Senators, Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.) asked for support to keep the Arlington Farms and Langston Stadium Government girls housing projects from being closed down September 30 as planned.

Senator Humphrey's letter said he was convinced that a reduction in operating costs and an increase in rents, to which he said the almost 4000 tenants were agreeable, would greatly reduce the large operating deficits.

In an announcement earlier this month, the Public Housing Administration said it was closing the projects because they had been losing money steadily since 1946.

It's Six Straight Now! A's Wallop Nats Again, 8-3

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

JIMMY DYKES flopped wearily onto his locker room chair, like a guy finished with an ordeal. The A's had just licked the Nats, 2-0, the other day, making two first-inning runs stand up for the rest of the contest.

Dykes wasn't exactly thrilled. "That kind of baseball," he groaned, "could win you the pennant and give you ulcers."

POVICH

His idea of a manager's job is the kind Joe McCarthy used to have with the Yankees. When Dykes, a few years ago, called McCarthy "a push-button manager," it was more in envy than in disparagement, he confessed.

"I'd have been willing to take McCarthy's team and risk any criticism," said Dykes. "That job he had was wonderful. If he needed a few runs, all he had to do was pick out one of his good pinch hitters. If any of his pitchers were in trouble, he just used to motion to Johnny Murphy, and get it over with."

DYKES WASN'T the only manager who used to covet the advantages of McCarthy with the old Yankees. Several years back, Bucky Harris steered his Nats to a seven-game winning streak, and should have been completely happy, at least at the moment. But he wasn't quite.

"This is too much of a strain," said Harris. "We've been winning 'em 2-1 and 1-0, or coming up with the winning run in the ninth. I won't really enjoy it until we come up with a nice 11-1 game, like McCarthy does. It may not be a good ball game, for the fans, but that's when a manager takes real pleasure in his job."

Dykes was saying he didn't care about being a genius—"Just let us get a lot of runs and the rest of the strategy will take care of itself. When I had the White Sox, I learned that you couldn't think enough runs over the plate to do you any good. The batting averages of our guys read like the time of day between 1 and 2 p. m. That's when my ulcers started."

DYKES IS ONE of the A's who has been preaching pennant ever since the club hit West Palm Beach on March 1, and insisted that Mr. Mack desist from conceding it to be a two-club race between Cleveland and Boston. "We asked Mr. Mack to say a few nice things about his own club and soft-pedal all those compliments to the Indians and Red Sox."

Today the A's are moving to New York for their first test with the Yankees, but that club does not concern Dykes as much as do the Red Sox. "That's the club to lick, Boston," he said. "If they don't beat out Cleveland, they should be ashamed. The team that finishes in front of Boston ought to win it, and we have a chance to do that."

What impresses Dykes is, naturally, all that Boston power. "All the way down the line, they have guys who can bust up ball games, even starting off with Dom DiMaggio. Then you get Pesky, who is always on base, and then Williams and Stevens and Doerr, and they show you Goodman and Dropo. Even Birdie Tebbetts can hit that left field fence in Fenway Park."

"THE GREAT LEVELER for the A's, though, could be their pitching," Dykes says, "and Joe McCarthy can't push any buttons to summon any solid pitchers. That's where we have the big edge, with Brissie and Fowler and Marchildon and Scheib. If McCarthy had our staff, he'd breeze in. If we had his hitters, they'd never catch us."

There are no inferiority complexes with the A's this year, Dykes said. "Our guys are beginning to think they ought to win every day, which is a nice way to feel about it. They know they're breaking the hearts of some of these clubs with their double plays, and that we're beginning to look tough to everybody.

"I'd say it's going to be a three-club race between Boston, Cleveland and us. The Yankees need DiMaggio like they need their turns at bat, and even with him they don't scare anybody any more. There's no sense denying that they used to, but you can't lose guys like DiMaggio, Keller, Dickey, Ruffing, Gomez and Murphy and keep up the same kind of front."

Yanks' 6-Run Rally in 8th Beats Bosox By 9 to 4

Boston, April 24 (AP).—Emulating a favorite stunt of their more illustrious forebears by going for a big inning, the 1949 edition of the New York Yankees today scored six times in the eighth inning and slugged out a 9-4 triumph over Boston's Red Sox.

A paid audience of 34,678, virtual capacity for Fenway Park, saw the Yankees come from a 4-0 deficit to win.

Boston righthander Joe Dobson pitched four-hit, scoreless ball through the first seven innings while the Sox scored twice in both the second and fifth innings.

Bombers Bat Around

The Yankees batted around in the eighth which Bobby Brown, hitting for the starting lefty Ed Lopat, began by lashing a single past Walt Dropo into right field. Gerry Coleman walked and the bases were filled when Phil Rizzuto bunted down the first base line and beat it out for a hit.

Johnny Lindell went out swinging. Tommy Henrich popped high to Bob Doerr and it appeared as if Dobson might weather the storm. But Yogi Berra lined a single into right for two runs. Bill Johnson's hard bouncer glanced off Doerr's arm and it was scored as an error, Rizzuto scored.

Woodling Homers

Gene Wooding then copied Yankee players by powering a home run into the right field stands. Sam Mele made a great try for the catch, winding up draped over a low gate, but couldn't quite reach the ball.

The Yankees added three more runs against Lefthander Johnny McCall and Righthander Fritz Dorish in the ninth.

Dodgers Beat Phils, 6-5, Bow In Opener, 7-4

Philadelphia, April 24 (AP).—Neat relief pitching by Rookie Jack Banta enabled the Brooklyn Dodgers to score a 6-to-5 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies today in the nightcap of a doubleheader before 33,748.

Three Philadelphia home runs backed up tight pitching by Lefty Ken Heintzelman to give the Phils a 7-4 win in the opener, snapping a four-game losing streak.

The Dodgers hammered young Curt Simmons off the mound in the second game with 10 hits and 6 runs in less than six innings. The defeat was the second of the year for Simmons.

In the first game, Heintzelman scattered nine Dodger hits, while Richie Ashburn homered in the seventh to break a 4-4 tie and give the Phillies the victory.

Ransom Wins At Wilmington

Wilmington, N. C., April 24 (AP).—Henry Ransom of St. Andrews, Ill., today pulled up the last rung of a steady climb to take first place in the Wilmington Open golf tournament with a 276.

Ransom who moved from fifth to second place yesterday after running eighth on opening day, finished out with a two-under-par 70 for top money of $2000.

He had rounds of 69-69-68-70 for the 72-hole stretch, 12 under par for the Cape Fear Country Club course.

Paul O'Leary, the 20-year-old newcomer from Bismarck, N. D., who had held doggedly to the lead for three days after an opening day round of 64, faded badly. He soared to a 76 for a 281 total that left him in a tie for sixth place.

Four wound up in a deadlock for second place at 278. Cary Middlecoff, of Memphis, Tenn., and Bob Hamilton, of Landover, Md., turned in 68's for the final round; Fred Haas, jr., of New Orleans, La., carded a 69 to join them, and Bobby Locke, of Johannesburg, South Africa, closed out with a 71.

Dick Metz of Virginia Beach, Va., finished with a 74 that gave him a tie with O'Leary at 281.

Giants Whip Braves, 6 to 2

New York, April 24 (AP).—Bobby Thomson slammed a three-run homer in the first inning and the New York Giants went on to defeat the Boston Braves, 6-2, today. Sheldon Jones held the Braves to seven hits to square his record for the season at 1-1.

Vern Bickford, who worked the first two frames for the losers, yielded all the Giants' runs as he suffered his first setback against one victory. Bob Hogue appeared in the third and blanked the Giants on four isngles the rest of the way.

Navy Crew Wins 5 of 6 Races; G. W. Team Qualifies

Annapolis, Md., April 24 (AP).—Navy crews won five out of six races today to take first place in elimination "B" of the Middle Atlantic college dinghy championships.

Stevens Institute (N. J.), George Washington University and Lafayette also qualified for the finals to be held here May 8 for the American Trophy.

Alex Grosvenor, midshipman from Washington, D. C., won two firsts for Navy.

On the basis of nine points for first, eight for second, etc., Victor Pfeiffer of Stevens was high-point winner with 21. In a three-way tie for second with 18 points were Don Duncan of George Washington, Bruce McIntosh of Haverford and Grosvenor, who sailed in only two events.

Sid Hudson Routed After Vollmer Ties With Homer

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

The Nats took their string of five defeats into action against the Athletics at Griffith Stadium yesterday and then there were six. They were licked, 8 to 3, after a slight delay in the sixth inning when Clyde Vollmer's two-run homer temporarily tied the score at 3-3.

After that, the A's showered down against Sid Hudson and Dick Welteroth with a lot of runs, many of them superfluous. Ferris Fain, with his new batting stroke, struck the decisive blow in the seventh.

With two on base, and the score tied, Fain exploited the situation by exploding a two-bagger to the center field fence. He was swinging with his new grip, "Down on the end of the bat, where the money is," and it paid off with two runs.

Lou Brissie, who pitched, was no draw-back at all, to the A's. He limited the Nats to five hits, and was in no great distress except in the sixth when Vollmer's long swat lifted the Nats out of a 3-1 deficit.

Before it was over, the A's raked Hudson and Welteroth and Dick Weik for 12 hits, including Hank Majeski's home run, and triples by Elmer Valo and Sam Chapman. It was a wonderful day to hit for distance with a favorable wind inviting drives to the fences.

Nats Lead Early

The Nats had the novel experience of getting a lead in a ball game when Gil Coan rapped a two bagger down the right field line to score Eddie Yost who walked, in the first inning. Coan was out at third trying to stretch his hit, but at least the Nats had a run.

The A's got that run back very simply in the fourth with their second hit off Hudson. Majeski simply banged one five rows up in the left field bleachers for a homer.

Hudson was no mystery at all to the A's in the sixth and they barged into a 3-1 lead, on four successive swats, the first of which was an enormous triple to the center field flag pole by Valo. After that Fain, Wright and Majeski splattered singles in all directions.

All of a sudden with the 10,169 customers despairing, the Nats got back in the ball game in their half of the sixth. Yost drew a walk but was languishing on first base with two out when Vollmer connected with a 3-and-2 pitch. It sailed handsomely into the seats in left.

Macks Explode

But the A's came back for more in the seventh and got four more. Hudson lost control, walked Joost, wild pitched him to second, and then walked Valo with none out. That's when Fain doubled to center to get 'em both home.

That swat also knocked Hudson

Good Fields Assured for Each Event

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre de Grace, Md., April 24. Booming along on a steady upplay, as compared to last season, surge of attendance and mutuel Havre de Grace looks for continued improvement during the final nine days of the meeting.

Three more stakes remain to be decided and all of them promise to bring out splendid fields. To date, the track has shown an increase over last year on 9 of the 12 days of seport and this percentage is likely to be bettered during the remaining portion of the meeting.

First of the three stakes to be offered during the final nine days will be the Havre de Grace Breeders Stakes, over the 4 furlongs distance and this feature is scheduled for Wednesday afternoon. The race is for juveniles foaled in Maryland and is worth $7,500 added money.

164 Eligible

An early check on the 164 nominations to the race indicates a field of possibly a dozen including It Girl, Make Swing, Abbe May, Tacaro, Likerock, Carter Hall, Cherry's First, Filly Phar, Straba, Marian Ann, Busy Morning, Maryland Day, World Empress, Bright Side and one of six eligibles to the race owned by Mrs. R. H. Heighe of Bel Air. The Bel Air sportswoman furnished the winner of last season's race in Wisenheimer.

On Saturday, the mile and a furlong Havre De Grace Handicap will be the principal attraction. Worth $15,000, this distance number should draw a banner field since it has been announced that Calumet Farm's Coaltown, whom all other trainers fear, probably will be in New York that afternoon.

Listed as prospects for the Havre De Grace are Seven League, Faultless, Service Pilot, Rampart, Turbine, Gasparilla, Pilaster, Nearway, Halconero, Cat Bridge and Royal Governor, among others.

Meet Closes May 4

Final stake of the session will be the Eastern Shore, a dash of four and a half furlongs for two year olds. It will be run on Wednesday, May 4, last day of the 21-day meeting and it carries $7500 endowment.

out of the box, and Dick Welteroth moved in, without much success. He walked Wright, was victimized by Kozar's fumble of Majeski's grounder, and then pitched a three-bagger to Sam Chapman who whacked the ball over Coan's head.

Any idea the Nats had of restoring themselves to the ball game after that were frustrated quickly by the A's in the eighth and ninth —with double plays.

IN SHORT . . . Happy to get out of town before they lose too many friends, the Nats moved on to Boston last night for the start of a two-game series tomorrow in the Hub . . . Paul Calvert will pitch against Left-hander Mel Parnel . . . Buddy Lewis reported new lameness in his injured leg, and Manager Joe Kuhel restored Clyde Vollmer to the line-up . . . The Nats have averaged six hits per game since the season started, just to give you an idea . . . Hank Majeski has hit safely in all of the A's seven games.

2 CYO Pitchers Hurl No-Hitters

Sluggers prevailed in most of yesterday's CYO baseball games, but no-hit, no-run games were hurled by Butch Wallach for Holy Name and Billy Smith for St. Gabriel's.

Wallach, 14, won his junior league game, 17-0, over St. Francis Xavier. Smith, 15, blanked St. Rita's of Alexandria, 15-0, in the intermediate league.

Bill Bennings:

AT HAVRE DE GRACE

DEAR FOLKS: Larry MacPhail, who dropped baseball for racing, is going to do business again in New York but not with the Yankees ball club. He intends to sell the product of his Maryland breeding farm at the Saratoga sales in the future. His recent purchase of the Bomar Stable stock puts him knee deep in the horse raising game. His present plans are to raise fillies before turning them into brood mares and to sell colts on the block. Among those opposing the additional racing days for Maryland is reported to be H. Courtney Jenifer, recently appointed chairman of the racing commission. Despite the fact that the bills had the Governor's blessing when passed by the Legislature, high men in the State believe Lane will apply the veto to the measures.—BILL.

Damascus Wins Opener

Damascus edged Sandy Spring, 1-0, in the top game of the Montgomery County League's openers yesterday at Damascus before 800.

In the other games, Colesville defeated Rockville, 6-1, and Silver Spring topped Bethesda, 5-3.

Paul Burner pitched a three-hit shutout for Damascus, but needed a perfect squeeze bunt in the ninth by Catcher Dick Hines to get the nod over Herb DeVers, Sandy Spring hurler who allowed seven hits.

Paul Hottinger and Brother Love, who relieved him in the seventh, held Rockville to six hits. Colesville's Shortstop John Honiface had the big bat, knocking out two doubles and a single.

Silver Spring's George Jarboe spotted Bethesda two runs, but Catcher Reds Bladen sparked rallies in the fifth and seventh to pull away. Bladen doubled home two runs in the fifth and one in the seventh. Teammate Ralph Mickeljohn hit a double to drive across the deciding two.

Bockman's 2 Homers Give Pirates Split

Pittsburgh, April 24 (AP).—Third Sacker Eddie Bockman smashed out two home runs in the nightcap today to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 3-to-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds and an even split in their double-header. The Reds captured the 10-inning opener, 3 to 2.

Southpaw Cliff Chambers delighted a thoroughly chilled crowd of 24,444 with a six-hit pitching performance. The only run he yielded was a home-run drive by Johnny Wyrostek in the sixth.

Five home runs were hit in the two contests, accounting for seven of the nine runs scored.

The Pirates put the nightcap on ice in the fourth on Bockman's two-run homer, which scored Danny Murtaugh, who walked. Bockman's second smash came in the seventh with the bases empty.

Charley Kress and Lloyd Merriman teamed up to dump the Pirates in the extra-inning opener.

Kress singled home Johnny Wyrostek with the winning run in the tenth.

Ralph Kiner hit his second home run in two consecutive games when he clouter an eighth-inning round tripper to tie the game, 2-2. Merriman was the batting star, however. Playing his initial game in centerfield for the Reds, he scored two

$250,000 Granted For Heart Study

Research awards totaling $250,000 for new and continuing studies in heart ailments have been allocated by the American Heart Association.

The grants went to 26 investigators and six medical schools and hospitals for studies in heart and circulatory disease, said A. W. Robertson, president of the board of AHA.

Included among the fellowships established was one valued up to $4000 a year for training at the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology here.

Research fellowships to medical school and hospitals totaled $103,800. These included one to A. Genecin for electrocardiographic studies at the Johns Hopkins Medical School, Baltimore.

Award selections were made from 121 requests totaling $1,400,000, according to Dr. Tinsley R. Harrison, of Dallas, Tex., president of the American Heart Association. All requests were "of high caliber and deserving of fulfillment," he stated.

Funds for the AHA are raised by annual public campaigns, and the award program is worked out in cooperation with the National Heart Institute, United States Public Health Service, at Bethesda, Md., to prevent duplication of efforts.

Scientist Speaks

Mass Theory Of Schooling Challenged

The need for giving the best education possible to those who will assume leadership in American life was stressed here yesterday by Dr. Arthur H. Compton, chancellor of Washington University, St. Louis.

Dr. Compton, atomic scientist and a 1927 Nobel Prize winner, said "there is a real danger in widespread, public tax-support of higher education in that spending so much of our effort on educating the many we make it more difficult to supply the special facilities needed to train the others.

"The quite correct idea of supplying equal educational opportunities for all is too often interpreted as meaning equal education for all, and when interpreted that way it means that we are not always supplying the best that can be given," he said.

"In the whole field of learning, the pace is set by how good are the top men. We have good top men, but we could call attention to the fact that they were trained in Europe."

By way of illustration, Dr. Compton said it was popularly assumed that advances in public health were due to "an adequate supply of well-trained doctors, but the fact is that it is primarily due to a relatively small number of men."

Private colleges and universities are especially adapted for giving the best in higher education, he said.

"The reason for the existence of a private college is that it supplies education that is in some ways distinctive, in that it supplies material not given in tax-supported institutions or else supplies superior quality.

"Church institutions come in the first category," he said, "while the private universities, if they have a place, have it primarily because they give education of distinctive quality. That does not mean tax-supported universities cannot supply the extra quality needed for the best education, but as a matter of fact it is very difficult for them to supply the extra planning that is needed."

Dr. Compton said he would nurture the promising young students in the elementary and secondary schools, and that private colleges should open their doors to more of them through scholarships and fellowships.

"From the point of view of the strength of our society, this is even more important than having something for all; the outstanding individuals set the pace," he said.

Last night Dr. Compton spoke at Washington University alumni dinner attended by about 75 persons in the Hotel Continental.

Ex-Convict Held In Strangling

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS

ACCUSED—John Saiu, a former convict released from prison less than three weeks ago, was charged yesterday with the strangulation slaying of Jackie Goldsmith, 8, in a New York amusement park 10 days ago. Police said he once was convicted of indecent assault upon a child

Cosmic Rays Held Product Of Milky Way

Chicago, April 24 (AP).—Where do cosmic rays come from?

Enrico Fermi, Nobel Prize physicist at the University of Chicago, thinks they originated up to two billion years ago out in space among the stars.

The Fermi hypothesis, presented in the current Physical Review, is that a ray is born in the collision of a tiny proton with a magnetic field in a huge galactic cloud like the Milky Way.

Fermi invented the uranium pile, opening the atomic age and making the atomic bomb a possibility back in 1942.

As a hint of the unimaginable speed of the fastest of rays, the Italian-born scientist says their acceleration process may take up to two billion years. The slower protons or rays may have been accelerated for only 100 million years, he says.

His theory asserts that the highest energy cosmic ray protons are as old as the stars. Only the exceptional proton, however, escapes energy losses by collision long enough to attain the highest speed.

Brannan Planning Reorganization Of Department

Agriculture Secretary Brannan is planning to overhaul some of the activities in his department. He told a congressional committee:

"I am conscious of the need to improve the organization of the department, particularly in the field of resource conservation and development." He explained that he had postponed his reorganization plans until he makes a thorough study of the Hoover Commission recommendations for his department.

RULE OF THREE: The Civil Service Commission has indorsed the suggestion that Federal officials be given greater leeway in the selection of people to fill middle and upper-bracket jobs. This is the story:

Officials are now restricted by the so-called "rule of three" in filing Civil Service jobs. They must select one of three eligibles certified to them by the Civil Service Commission or get involved in endless red tape.

As a result, everyone agrees that (1) improper placements are made, and (2) the jobs are filled from within by transfers and promotions or they are left vacant when Civil Service eligibles prove to be unsatisfactory.

In its report on personnel, the Hoover Commission pin-pointed the shortcomings of the rule-of-three and urged its abolition. In a report to the White House, Civil Service now agrees that Federal officials should be given more of a choice in filling professional, technical, and administrative jobs. As a starter, it proposes that five eligibles be certified for a vacancy. But for the mass clerical jobs, the commission would continue the rule-of-three.

TURN-ABOUT? The Administration plan for a revision of the Classification Act may be sent to Congress this week. Civil Service leaders on Capitol Hill have been sounded out on the possible strategy move. The plan is almost identical with the Murray reclassification bill which was explained in detail last week.

Meantime, a new drive is under way to get congressional approval of the executive salary bill. The President has again pleaded with Democratic leaders to get behind the legislation. The Administration had hoped to delay its reclassification measure until the executive pay raise was voted.

VA: It's rushing plans to make a major layoff. The first flurry of dismissal notices will go out early in May. The separate reductions which would total between 10,000 and 12,000 employes are now in the works, and a third looms on the horizon.

No. 1 will be in the branch offices. Administrator Gray disclosed several months ago that 2500 jobs in these offices would be wiped out. Meanwhile, employes have resigned and transferred, and the number to be fired will be substantially smaller.

No. 2 will be throughout the Veterans' Administration. About 10,000 jobs are involved. The President recommended the reduction to Congress in his budget message.

No. 3 was voted by the House and it would knock out 8000 additional jobs, bringing the total to around 20,000. But VA officials will appeal to the Senate to restore the money for these jobs.

Policeman's Attack Tale Puts Fellows In Stalemate

All-Night Questions Fail to Elicit Clew On Sergeant's Story Of Binding, Taping

Police investigation into the complaint of Brentwood, Md., police Sergt. Blackstone Smith that he was bound, gagged and gassed in his apartment early Saturday, was reported stymied yesterday after round-the-clock questionings.

The inquiry ran into a lull as investigating officers took time for sleep lost during an all-night session Saturday. The officers, including State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie, were up until 6 a. m. yesterday.

Although police discussed the attack with Smith until early morning, they said they ended the talks without a clew. They also reported "nothing new" after questioning two unidentified men and a women from the District shortly after midnight.

Smith did not return to his apartment in Brentwood yesterday. He was reported to be staying with friends in Washington.

Brentwood Mayor James L. Russell said last night that Smith's discharge was in no way connected to recent gambling investigations. He said it was made solely on the basis of economy. He praised Smith as of "very high character" and said the discharge "in no way reflects on his character."

Brentwood Police Chief Fred Schatz spent about an hour in Thomsen's office but he, too, said he knew nothing more of the case than was contained in Smith's original complaint Saturday.

Sergeant Smith was found at the foot of the steps to his apartment by his landlord, B. H. Roane, who lives on the first floor of the dwelling at 4100 Utah ave.

The officer's feet were tied with tape, his hands were manacled behind him with his own handcuffs and a cotton gag had been stuffed in his mouth and bound by adhesive tape.

Smith later told police he was attacked by "at least two men" who had lain in wait in his apartment. He said he was thrown to the floor and trussed so quickly that he had no chance to identify his assailants who turned on four burners of the gas stove before leaving.

Several hours after the reported attack, it was learned that Smith had been dismissed from the Brentwood police force.

The dismissal followed by only a day, Smith's appearance before the Prince Georges County grand jury investigating alleged gambling activities in the County. County officials emphasized however, that the dismissal was in no way connected with Smith's grand jury appearance or the gambling investigation.

Bowie told reporters he was aware for more than two weeks that the sergeant's dismissal was considered and knew of the reasons for his ouster. The action he said was "entirely foreign" to Smith's appearance before the grand jury and apparently to the reported attack.

Smith has said he answered only a few general questions before the grand jury which has been hearing evidence gathered by Bowie in his investigation of gambling. The investigation started sometime ago, recently attracted special attention in connection with another drive instituted by George Morris Fay, United States Attorney for the District.

Bowie said the fact that Smith received word of his dismissal within a few hours after the reported attack appeared to be "mere coincidence and nothing more." According to Brentwood town officials, the officer should have received notice of his dismissal by mail at least a day before he was notified verbally by Elbert Brown, police commissioner.

Retaliation Vow

Court Gets Building Squabble

By Don Olesen

A neighborhood squabble in Alexandria's Beverly Hills suburb was scheduled to spill over into City Civil and Police Court today.

Neighborhood ire centered on Samuel T. Weaver, 40-year-old real estate salesman who lives at 3212 Old Dominion blvd.

In court today, Weaver faces two charges of violating city building laws and one of breaking zoning regulations. Charges were brought by neighbors and by City Building Inspector A. R. Lash.

But Weaver said if he is convicted on the counts, he will "sell the house to any race, creed or color."

One warrant accuses Weaver of enclosing a screen porch on his home without a building permit; another of erecting a tiny tool shed in his back yard without permit.

Two Families, They Say

The third count charges Weaver with operating a two-family residence in a one-family-home neighborhood, in violation of zoning regulations.

Weaver admit he enclosed the porch without a permit "because they wouldn't give me one." He said he framed in the former screen porch because a neighbor's compost pile with "a bad smell" lay about four feet from it.

Weaver said he built the tiny tool shed, with a two-by-two base, without knowing he needed a permit to do so.

But he denied his home is laid out as a two-family residence, although admitting that two friends had lived with his family until recently.

Called Too Snooty

Weaver called his neighbors "too snooty and too particular."

Neighbors described Weaver as "eccentric" and "unsociable." One of the complainants, Mrs. George M. Kerr of 3210 Old Dominion blvd., said nearby residents also objected to:

The small utility trailer Weaver keeps in his front yard; a roofed-over swing, and cement parking area there, and a small cinder-block wall along the side of his house.

Another neighbor, who asked that his name not be used, said Weaver had chopped down all the trees in his back yard and had built a picket fence around his yard "when nobody else around here has one."

Weaver, who is married and has one child, said he had been active in the real estate business until ill health forced him to stop work last fall.

He said a court conviction on any of the three charges "will break me mentally and financially," and that "I'll sell property to colored people or any other race if I can find a buyer for it."

Second Driver Dies Following Truck Crash

Both trucks were demolished. The driver of the second vehicle, Major Stannard, 56, of 4540 Eads st. ne., was pinned in his cab. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

Battle's truck, its front wheels ripped off and its motor torn from the chassis, hurtled along the road for 25 feet before overturning.

Real Vocational Training in Arlington . . .

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

At Arlington's Washington-Lee High School, they have a vocational training plant that can tackle just about any school problem except how to raise junior's grades.

Students in the plant's six specialized shops can make anything from a library bookcase to a school heating duct—and repair the school truck that hauls them away.

Louis G. Hamm, head of the vocational training department, believes the Arlington school system saves itself thousands of dollars annually in this way.

In the humming auto mechanic shop, for example, they're equipped to overhaul completely the school system's three trucks. And repair the students' cars as well.

They have a battery of motor analyzers with lights like a pinball machine.

There are several war-surplus Diesel and aircraft engines that students can strip down between sessions of book and blackboard drills.

Outside the shop is a war-surplus Army AT-6 trainer, which Hamm's son, Richard—a former AAF flier—flew up from Woodward Field, S. C. Students swarm over it to study the controls and the engine.

Down the hall in the drafting room, teen-agers can draw up plans for auditorium seating arrangements, or possibly a sketch of school equipment to be made in another shop.

In the machine shop two students are welding the supports for a new basketball backboard. They're making the board itself in the adjacent woodshop.

Students in the sheet metal shop made screen wire frames for W-L's cafeteria windows, sealed up the bottoms of school lockers to keep out the dirt, and put up sheet metal guards on fire escapes at Matthew Maury Elementary School.

The woodshop equipped the Hoffman-Boston School library with bookshelves, desks and magazine racks. It's now making file cabinets for student records.

Across the hall in the print shop the record forms themselves are being set up. Print shop instructor Thomas Netting, who also teaches woodworking in the night school, says his boys can turn out anything from a dance program to a P-TA meeting notice.

Hamm thinks work like this, in addition to giving students practical job training, helps make the school system "practically self-maintaining" as far as parts and repairs go.

PROJECT—Making record cabinets in the wood shop at Washington-Lee is good training, and helps cut expenses, too. The cabinets will be used by the school to contain files. Two brothers, Chuck and Lee Donaldson, 1712 N. Quebec st., Arlington, are shown working together

Alert Redcap Unsnatches Editor's Suitcase

The vaunted newspaper deadline received an unintentional assist yesterday from a Union Station redcap who thought he was merely catching a thief.

John W. Smithe, 30, of 1443 Savannah st. se., was the redcap hero. He received a suitcase from John W. Crider, editor of the Boston Herald, who was about to board a train after attending the meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors here.

The bag contained clothing and toilet articles and a book on which Crider was supposed to turn in a review for an approaching deadline. Smithe put the bag down, soon noticed someone walking off with it.

Smithe nabbed the bag snatcher and turned him over to police who identified the man as James A. Barnes, 62, of no fixed address. Barnes will face charges in Municipal Court today and Crider apparently will meet his deadline as scheduled.

(P. S. Smithe received special congratulations and thanks by wire from Crider.)

Conflict of Ideas

Catholics Are Warned Of Traitors

Delegates from 26 Catholic dioceses and 11 national Catholic men's organizations ended a two-day meeting here yesterday of the National Council of Catholic Men with a warning against traitors to democratic government.

Speaking at the Council's headquarters at the Statler Hotel, the Most Rev. Robert E. Lucey, archbishop of San Antonio, declared:

"A tremendous conflict is being waged over the whole world today in the field of ideas between those who believe in God and those who deny Him . . . Here in our own country we have developed an incredible number of men who deserve the name Judas or Benedict Arnold. They are more loyal to an alien, atheistic government than to our own democracy."

Archbishop Lucey urged members of the council to organize Catholic men throughout the Nation in defense of religion and the American way of life.

The council adopted resolutions indorsing the establishment of industry councils composed of representatives of labor, management and the public, and proposed that in the event of Federal aid to education there must be no discrimination between children in public and nonpublic schools on such matters as health services and bus transportation.

New officers elected were: Francis I. Nally, Toledo, Ohio, to the board of directors; Daniel E. Morrisey, Chicago, national secretary; Emmet A. Blaes, Wichita, Kans., reelected president of the Council; Stewart Lynch, Wilmington, Del., vice president of the Council, and James F. McCaffrey, Dallas, Tex., treasurer.

Robbed Cabbie Traps 2 as His Own Detective

Arlington police yesterday charged two Army recruits with the knife-point robbery of a cab driver early Saturday.

The suspects, Raymond E. Brown, 22, and Howard B. McKinnis, 20, both stationed at Arlington Hall, were picked up by District police Saturday night on a tip from the hacker, Willard Steinberg, 2016 O st. nw.

The cabbie, who said he lost $16 in the holdup, was advised by city police to cruise his Yellow Radio Cab around Washington restaurants to see if he could spot his assailants.

When he looked into the Casablanca Cafe, 421 11th st. nw., he spotted Brown and McKinnis and radioed his dispatcher who summoned police. Detectives arrested the pair as they left the cafe and turned them over to Arlington officials.

Arlington police said Brown and McKinnis confessed the holdup.

Two rooms at the Hotel Harrington, 11th and E sts. nw., were robbed of $700 and valuable personal papers, police were told.

George Menham of Pittsburgh, Pa., reported loss of $600, and Robert R. Woodside, also of Pittsburgh, who shared the room, reported $100 and valuable papers were stolen sometime between 12:30 and 10 a. m. Sunday.

Ivan King, of Harvard University, reported $25 and personal papers were taken sometime between 11 p. m. and 10:45 a. m. Sunday.

Police said doors of both rooms had been left unlocked.

Penologists At Odds on Crime Rate Of Negroes

U. S. Expert Blames Race Frustration; Due to Poverty, Says Corrections Head

Two penologists yesterday offered conflicting theories to explain the Negro crime rate in the District.

Henry Coe Lanpher, Federal Bureau of Prisons statistician, said that Negroes committed a disproportionate amount of crime because of the frustration they felt about their unequal social status.

Donald Clemmer, director of the District Department of Correction, denied this and stressed poverty as the motivating force behind Negro crime.

The discussion occurred yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Anti-Crime Committee, an organization which aims to reduce the District Negro crime rate. The meeting was at the 12th st. YMCA, 1816 12th st., nw.

Lanpher's Explanation

Lanpher told the committee:

1. Seventy-three per cent of those arrested in Washington were Negroes.

2. Twenty-five per cent of those arrested nationally were Negroes. Of all persons arrested for assault, 46 per cent were Negroes; of those arrested for homicidal charges, 46 per cent were Negroes; of those arrested for robbery, 38 per cent were Negroes.

3. Twenty-three per cent of Federal prisoners were Negroes, against an estimated Negro population of 10 per cent.

4. Thirty-five per cent of State prisoners were Negroes.

5. Only one per thousand Negro prisoners escaped; eight per thousand white prisoners escaped.

Lack of Equal Opportunity

The high rate of Negro crime was caused by the frustration rightly felt by the Negro, Lanpher said. This frustration was caused by the Negro's realization that he lacked equal opportunity, Lanpher said.

Clemmer said that frustration was the psychiatrist's explanation for the high Negro crime rate, and he expressed amazement that Lanpher could accept the word of the psychiatrists, who, he said, had accomplished little in the field of penology.

More than 80 per cent of all crime involved stealing in one form or another, Clemmer said. Stealing resulted from the predatory American attitude of "get, get, get," he added.

"The Negro has less, but wants as much as the white person," Clemmer said. "And thus poverty leads the Negro to commit crime."

Few Negroes are alcoholics, he added, and alcoholism is traditionally the disease of the frustrated man.

Lanpher said that laws which would reduce Negro frustration would reduce Negro crime. Such laws, he said, would provide better housing and education, a fair employment practice law, and equal civil rights.

Clemmer urged that such laws could not possibly be enacted at this time, and suggested that specially conducted tours of District penal institutions might help reduce crime.

He described the "predatory American attitude" as "one of the worst features of capitalism."

Dr. E. B. Henderson, chairman of the Anti-Crime Committee, told the audience that crime was not racial in character and that there was no reason why Negroes should commit more than their share of crime.

He urged schools and ministers to educate to reduce juvenile delinquency and vandalism. Crime starts with youth, he said, and society has more control over the young during school age than at any other time.

Missouri Group's Election Is Rough

The Missouri State Society, it may now be told, held its annual ball and election of officers Saturday night. The ball was gay, but the election was rough.

After several hours of unexplained delay, Nominating Committee Chairman John Gordon took the microphone and called on a woman, who immediately proposed that President Thomas T. Kenney and the incumbent slate of officers be reelected.

The Missourians, apparently taken aback at such promptness, took on a "looka here" attitude.

H. L. Kemp, an office equipment man, then rose and said he had an alternate slate. Gordon, a representative of the American Animal and Vegetable Oils Industries, said the motion to reelect the incumbents had to be voted on first and if the members didn't like it they could vote "nay." He got a full-throated nay.

Cries of "steamroller" and "un-American" arose and a quick conference ensued.

Finally Gordon decided to allow the society to take its pick between the two slates proposed. Tables were brought, tellers appointed, membership cards inspected, and a written ballot was taken.

At 12:30 a. m., Kenney, an attorney with the Federal Housing Administration, was out and Clarence McCune, a real estate dealer, was the new president of the Missouri State Society by a vote of 128 to 32. McCune's ticket included the incumbent secretary, treasurer and tyler.

After the election, society members revealed that they had nothing against Kenney but that they sure like to make up their own minds. Besides, one of Kenney's vice presidents wasn't even a Missourian. He's a Virginian, they said.

Boat Capsized

Widow Tells Of Seeing Drownings

Baltimore, April 24 (AP).—One of two women who survived a boat capsizing which claimed three lives today told rescuers she saw her young nephew drown in her arms and her husband swim off to his death.

Charles H. Stark said Mrs. Inez Wrightson, 25, described the episode after he pulled her from the churning waters of Chesapeake Bay 8 miles east of here.

Police at nearby Essex, Md., listed the missing as John Wrightson, 30; his 5-year-old nephew, Charles Wrightson, and Fred Moon, 21.

The other survivor, Mrs. Helen Moon, 20, was rescued by another yachtsman, Leland Way of Wyomissing, Pa.

Stark said Mrs. Wrightson gave him this account:

The two married couples and the Wrightson boy were thrown into the bay when a squall overturned their 14-foot motorboat. She and her husband clung to a cushion and a can, supporting the boy between them.

Waves 2 to 3 feet high washed over them. The child kept swallowing water until he collapsed in their arms. The couple became exhausted, the boy's body slipped from their grasp and sank beneath the surface.

Wrightson expressed fear that the debris no longer could support him and his wife, then swam away. His jacket was found some distance from the debris.

Way said he discovered Mrs. Moon clinging to the overturned motorboat. He said she told him a wave "swung the boat around," causing it to strike her husband.

Both survivors were taken to Baltimore City hospitals for treatment of shock and exposure.

Police Sergt. Fred W. Peters said a private seaplane pilot had spotted the bodies of Wrightson and Moon.

Liquor Permit Hearing Today

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board will hear arguments at 2 p. m. today that it should reconsider its granting of a liquor license at 1918 Allison st. ne.

Issuance of the license to Alex Browdy last March stimulated a wave of opposition by residents of the Michigan Park area.

The matter came to a head April 4 when the Michigan Park Citizens Association voted unanimously to erase from its minutes a prior decision not to oppose the licensing.

At the April 4 meeting charges were made that the original vote was "railroaded" through at a poorly attended meeting.

The ABC board meeting today is in the nature of a precedent, according to Alan W. Payne, ABC chairman.

Payne said that never before in his 4½ years with the board has the board entertained arguments seeking a rehearsing of a case in which a license has been granted.

Petition for a rehearing was filed by Attorney Nathan Lubar for residents opposing the licensing.

Blossoming Tregaron Scene of Davies Party

By Marie McNair

Everywhere you look there's a vista at Tregaron, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davies' estate on Klingle rd.

Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Davies entertained at the second of two teas in the garden, planned for the week that the flowers are matchless for beauty. From the first turn of the winding driveway, through hedges of azaleas, and the new green of spring, there's a riot of color as far as the eye can see. Pale pink dogwood trees and delicate white blossoms spread their branches like a mantle over the greensward. Masses of flame, and shell pink azaleas, mingled in unbelievable harmony with orange, and magenta tones. White tulips, pink tipped, had a bed of their own and diffident little forget-me-nots hugged the borders of yellow tulips set out row upon row.

A brisk, cool breeze sent Mr. and Mrs. Davies indoors to welcome their 500 guests. Mrs. Davies' pale pink gown looked like one of her own azaleas in color and the short matching cape which was turned back over her shoulders was bordered in platina fox fur.

Most of the guests were content to gather on the wide terrace, looking out over the garden as they sipped their drinks, ate plates of cold turkey, ham, and salad and a subtle mint ice cream served with strawberry sauce.

Visit Russian House

Some, like Lady Maitland Wilson, strolled down to the miniature lake; or made a pilgrimage to the little Russian house which the Davies built as a reminder of the days when Mr. Davies was our ambassador to Moscow.

Others had hot tea or coffee in the dining room where another buffet offered hot dishes as well as the usual teatime accompaniments. Still others found their way to the sunroom where Mrs. Davies' pink cactus is flowering and where two dozen small but rare orchids were in full bloom.

The Norwegian Ambassador, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, was there and the Luxembourg Minister and Mme. LeGallais, the Counselor of the Soviet Embassy and Mme. Bazykin, Joseph Brennan, First Secretary of the Irish Legation Attorney General Tom Clark, like a good many others, was on his way to another party, so were the Postmaster General and Mrs. Jesse Donaldson.

Met the Counselor of the Portuguese Embassy and good looking Mme. Rocheta chatting with Mrs. Emil Hurja; saw the John Steelmans—Emma with a silver fox cape covering her draped black crepe frock; and learned that Miss Frances Perkins, former Secretary of Labor, encouraged by the success of her book on F.D.R., is at work on another. Admiral and Mrs. Harold Stark, familiar faces during war days, who are living here now, were there, and other service folk were Gen. and Mrs. Stanley Embick; Gen. and Mrs. William D. Connor; Gen. John Greely and Mrs. Greely with a red wool cape about her shoulders.

In Ikon Room

In the Davies Russian room, filled with magnificent gold and jeweled ikons, Mrs. Millard Tydings, Mr. Davies' daughter, stood; in an adjoining room I saw Mrs. Eleanor de Bekessy, daughter of Mrs. Davies.

Senator and Mrs. Kenneth Wherry, Senator and Mrs. Alexander Wiley, and former Senator Joseph Guffey with his sister, Miss Ida, were enjoying this pleasant party, and from Washington's "old guard," there were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, Mrs. Robert F. Dunlap, Mrs. McCook Knox and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Brooke.

Mrs. Owen Brewster, Kenneth Royall, just resigned as Secretary of the Army, and Mrs. Royall, in pale blue from her hat to her hem, came together. Gen. Conger Pratt and Mrs. Pratt, wearing a hat of shaded pink and rose ostrich, were in their usual good humor, and still others were Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. James K. Vardaman, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Houghteling and Mr. and Mrs. George Maurice Morris.

Mme. Rybar wore a real garden party hat—of black horsehair and pale pink roses, and with her was her son-in-law and daughter, Bob and Elvina Geauque.

Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, her blond hair wreathed in white lilacs, took her turn at the tea table, so did Mrs. Harold Burton and Mrs. Mesta, a lilac straw hat topping her black costume.

And—then: Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Prochnik, Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould, squired by Senator Clyde Hoey; Mrs. Pearsons Rust, Mrs Fred Britten, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Holdrege, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Douglas, Mrs. Justin Miller, Gen. and Mrs. Gordon Young, Jack Logan and Fred Roy, white-thatched Elmer Davis, with Mrs Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Bretsch and Miss Bertha Joseph.

And—on to Major Harry Haller's cocktail party, opening gun in a series of farewells for Admiral Ernest von Heimburg and Mrs von Heimburg, who'll sail May 6 for Rio where the admiral will head our naval mission to Brazil.

There was much laughter at this party and a happy air of informality. Major Haller wore his blue "pyramid suit" and Mrs. von Heimburg was in black with a brimmed black hat. With them were their daughter, Gretchen, a charming blonde, and Mrs. von Heimburg's sisters, Mrs. Lee Parks and Peggy Glassford.

Senator Harry Cain was there and others were Gen. and Mrs. Thomas J. Hanley, Mrs. Katharine Byron with purple lilacs on her hat; Mrs. Thomas Dawson and her daughter, Mrs. Vincent Bliss Linn; Mrs. Celeste Crosby Miller, Mrs. Deborah Leighton Glassford, Peter Ilsey, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Drum Hunt, Mrs. Allen Ingram Price, Mr. and Mrs. L. Mary Haworth's Mail

Soon to Finish College, Married Veteran Feels Urge to Disappear and Start Afresh In Strange Surroundings; He Wonders Why

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a veteran. I served more than a year in Europe and was discharged three years ago. I am now in college, have majored in a subject that deeply interests me, and will graduate soon.

I am happily married, and my wife and I have many friends whom I enjoy very much. On the whole, life is not bad at all. That's why I cannot understand why I am possessed by an urge to break completely away from present ties, go elsewhere and start a new life.

For the past 18 months I have fought this urge and twice have been on the verge of leaving, only to change my mind at the last minute. This feeling of restlessness is ever-present and I seem to have no control of it.

Norma knows I am restless most of the time, but I haven't told her the seriousness of it. I can't even explain it to myself, so I have no way of explaining it to her. I have honestly tried to thresh it out with myself, but can't reach any conclusions. If you can offer any suggestions, on the basis of this meager outline, I shall be most grateful. R. B.

Man Is Hankering to Escape Himself

DEAR R. B.: Your restless urge to break away from everything and start anew, in strange surroundings, suggests a desire to "escape from self,"—i. e., from chronic anxiety that you cannot account for.

In all probability you are psycho-neurotic, assailed by inner conflicts, the meaning of which cannot be plumbed by solitary self-questioning. The "unconscious," where the trouble brews, is very devious in sending up false alarms, to camouflage the forbidden impulses that press for outlet. Thus you can hardly get at the source-reasons for your maladjustment without expert guidance that knows the signals.

However, it may help to know that, in general, a history of emotional hardships in early life—such as being orphaned, for instance; or neglected; or punished for failure to achieve "model" conduct—instigates this anxiety-pattern.

Better Stand Pat, Unravel Anxieties

ALSO, the person thus beset may have a frail or sensitive physical heritage, one that required a gentle clime in which to thrive. And if, from such a background, he is pushed prematurely into stressful experience with life—such as fighting a war, when he craves opportunity for peaceful pursuits,—it is hardly surprising if he feels, at last, that nothing makes sense to him, and that he wants to "get away from everything."

Essentially, what you want and need is to find yourself, to come to terms with yourself, as the saying goes; to get rid of "unconscious" blocks to peace of mind; and then decide how to work out a satisfactory synthesis of talents, opportunities and major interests—so that your life will make sense to you. And to bring this about, you should "wade in" to yourself with a good psychiatrist's help. M. H.

Walking Boards . . .

Almost every well-equipped nursery school has a piece of equipment that can easily and cheaply be duplicated in one's own back yard or playroom. That's a walking or a jumping board.

All one needs is a flexible plank from 10 to 12 feet long, 8 to 12 inches wide with substantial cleats, 2 to 4 inches high, at either end. Pieces of 2-by-4's are very suitable for the cleats.

Such a board has a number of uses that will delight the hearts of the small fry. First of all, it's fun to jump on. The spring it gives is strong enough to be exciting but not strong enough to be dangerous.

There's fun in just walking across, too. Sometimes, it can be put up on boxes a foot or more above the ground and be really exiciting. Another common use is as a climbing plank. If one cleat is hooked over a saw horse, or on the edge of a sturdy box, there is a challengingly steep path up which to climb. Put at a sharper angle, it can be used as a simple slide.

And this is only the beginning. Youngsters will find all sorts of other uses for it.

Tea Celebrates Publication of Poems

Mrs. Edward J. Thye, wife of the Senator from Minnesota; Mrs. John Courtney and Miss Florence Taafe served as honorary chairmen for the tea yesterday given by the Washington alumnae group of the College of St. Catherine in St. Paul, Minn., in the art department of Catholic University. The fete was to mark the publication this month of a new book of poetry, "Frost for St. Brigid," written by Sister Maris Stella, head of the English department of the College of St. Catherine. Her poems have appeared in numerous anthologies and in national magazines.

Heads of all the English departments of colleges and universities in Washington and the vicinity were invited. Miss Natalie Sweeney was general chairman, assisted by Miss Marie Corrigan, dean of women of Catholic University. Autographed copies of the new book were available at the tea.

How to Frame Japanese Silk

I have two quite old pieces of Japanese embroidered silk which I would like to frame for wall decorations. What would you suggest? They are squares, originally intended for sofa-pillow tops One square is green satin embroidered with life-size purple iris and leaves and tiny birds. The other is white taffeta, on which was painted a picture of the battleship Nebraska set in a rectangular frame effect, with embroidered anchor chair and pink and yellow chrysanthemums twined about it. They would have to be put under glass as they are quite fragile. They have great sentimental value. N. S. T.

Firms listed under "Picture Frames" in the yellow pages of the telephone book, which make frames to order, can do this work for you. They will mount the silk on a foundation to remove all wrinkles and hold it firm. Then they will place a glass over it to protect the fabric from moisture and dirt and frame it suitably.

We are planning a wedding reception in our home for our niece who is to be married in the early spring. She is having a church wedding, but is only planning to ask about 30 people to the reception. Our house is very small, with a dinette-size dining room. Would a menu of wedding cake, punch and maybe mints and nuts be adequate for a mid-afternoon reception? Are flowers used on the table or is the cake the center of decoration? Should the napkins be linen or are paper ones permissible? Are forks used for the cake? Could you give me a good punch recipe which would serve this many people? G. M. G.

Your suggestions for refreshments sound quite adequate and pleasing. The cake is usually the center of decoration for the table. If you wish, you could circle the cake with dainty, trailing greenery. Paper napkins are permissible and frequently used for such an occasion. A nice idea is to have white paper napkins printed in silver or gold with the bride's and groom's first names or initials in one corner.

Yes, use forks for the cake.

Fruit Punch

3 cups sugar.
1½ cups water.
¼ cup tea leaves.
3 cups boiling water.
Juice of 6 lemons.
Juice of 4 oranges.
1 pint grape juice.
2 cups water.

Boil sugar and 1½ cup water 8 minutes. Steep tea 3 minutes in boiling water, strain and cool. Strain juices of lemons and oranges. Combine grape juice and 2 cups water with other ingredients. Let chill for several hours or overnight. When ready to serve, pour over ice and garnish with mint leaves, strawberries sliced, bits of orange, lemon or cherries. This amount will make approximately 30½ cup servings. For seconds, double the recipe.

In an attempt to remove a fat stain from a new pair of men's tan capeskin gloves I used soap and water. This, however, left certain areas still more darkly stained. Is there any way that I can remove these stains? H. K.

It is not certain that any home method will remove the stains now, but you might try this: Dust the stain with talcum powder, rub it in and allow to stand. When powder has had a chance to absorb the oil, remove and repeat. If this doesn't lighten the stain enough to make it inconspicuous, try washing again, using a soapless shampoo and giving special attention to the stained area. Brushing the lather into the stained area with a soft brush might help further to dislodge the oil.

A reader asked for a recipe for wine vinegar. Here is one I have found excellent. It appeared in the October Gourmet Magazine. H. L. E.

RED WINE VINEGAR

Color is the only difference between red and white wine vinegar. The red has eye appeal but the flavor difference is negligible. Mix in enameled kettle:

2 pints white vinegar
2 pints inexpensive dry red wine
1 tablespoon tarragon leaves
4 whole cloves
6 bay leaves
1 clove garlic, quartered
1 slice lemon

Bring this mixture to a boil. Place it over an asbestos pad and let it simmer, covered, for 30 minutes. Strain the vinegar through filter paper or a double thickness of wet cheese cloth. Cool and pour it into sterilized bottles and cork tightly. Keep in a dark, cool, dry place.

PETUNIA!

I wind up the cat
And I pull down the spread
And I put on my gloves
And I'm ready for bed.

Those gloves are a good idea, Petunia—if you've lots of cream or lotion on your hands first. It's the fastest way to make rough chapped hands beautifully smooth.

Rep. Johnson Lays Wreath on Statue Of Father Serra

Representative LeRoy Johnson (R., Calif.) yesterday laid a wreath at the foot of a statue of Father Junipero Serra in statuary hall in the Capitol commemorating the Franciscan father's sailing from Spain in 1749.

The statue is one of two placed in statuary hall by the State of California. Father Serra landed in Mexico and later went on to California.

Praising Father Serra's work as a missionary and teacher, Representative Johnson said, "If there had been 200 years of Father Serra's efforts, we would not today be worrying about war or suffering from its aftermath." The missionary supervised building of nine missions from San Diego to San Rafael near San Francisco, the Congressman said.

One-Third Mark Reached in Drive For Cancer Fund

The District division of the American Cancer Society has reached the one-third mark in its drive for $200,000 to fight cancer, Campaign Chairman E. Cleveland Giddings announced yesterday.

More than $66,000 in contributions already have been turned in to the fund, he said, which puts the campaign about 5 per cent ahead of last year's schedule.

The public will be allowed to participate in an open forum concerning cancer on Thursday night from 9:30 to 10 in Studio A in the Translux Building. Leading cancer specialists on the program will include Dr. Harry H. Kerr, president of the District division of the society; Dr. Peter D. Comanduras, medical director of the society; Dr. Murray M. Copeland, director of oncology at Georgetown University Hospital and Dr. Calvin T. Klopp, cancer coordinator at George Washington University.

Military Junta Crushes Revolt By Peru APRA

Lima, Peru, April 24 (AP).—The ruling military junta announced it has discovered and crushed a plot for a Peruvian revolt scheduled to start tonight or Monday. The outlawed APRA Party was blamed.

The plans, a brief government announcement issued last night said, called for widespread assassinations and the burning of public buildings. Civilians and noncommissioned officers of the armed forces, "particularly the police," were reported under arrest for complicity.

The plans were said to call for the assassination of Manuel Odria, president of the military junta which seized power last October.

The army was ordered to take charge of preserving order, and issue new regulations. These included a ban on motor and pedestrian traffic, except for food deliveries, between midnight and 6 a. m.; a ban on liquor sales after 8 p. m.; a ban on public assemblies after 9 p. m., and one prohibiting civilians from carrying arms or explosives.

Ballet Recital By 130 Children

The dancers, whose ages range from 3 to 15, are the pupils of Zina Ouzarova, formerly of the Paris Grand Opera. She will be the prima ballerina at the recital.

Proceeds will be used to provide scholarship funds for several associated schools.

Here's how to improve your own Home Lighting

JUST follow these simple suggestions and presto!—you will introduce soft, well-directed flattering lighting. You will banish ugly, eye-tiring gloom and glare!

START by retiring your color-lined lamp shades. Use only light-reflecting white-lined shades. They give up to 50% more light.

BE SURE to select only flared shades. They give much more light than the straight-sided kind.

PLACE your portable lamps no more than 30 inches away from your "eye-task" . . . 18 to 24 inches is even better. And here's a tip to follow when you're doing your spring housecleaning: wash all your lamp bulbs with soap and water. Keep shades and reflectors clean.

Look! INEXPENSIVE, QUICK CHANGE WAYS TO LOVELIER LIGHTING

A. DIFFUSING BOWL . . . Add one of these to your old-type upturned living room lamps. Softens light, eliminates glare. Easily screwed in most lamps.

B. PIN-TO-WALL LAMPS . . . Use them with chairs, with desks, and on either side of your dressing table, to bring new beauty to the bedroom.

Patriotic Hacker Shuns "Revolutionists"

The DAR convention recalls a last-year's story to Dick Hawkins of 3024½ R st. nw.

It's the one about the two DAR ladies who hailed a cab and asked to be taken to the convention hall.

"Convention?" echoed the hacker. "What convention?"

"Why, the convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution of course," replied the ladies. The cab driver looked them over dubiously and said:

"If it's all the same to you, take some other cab. I don't want to be driving for any revolutionists."

MISCELLANY

Transport pilots who take off from National Airport might like to know that an Alexandria woman and her two little daughters always wish them "Safe journey" when they hear the sound of the motors overhead . . . Invalid streetcar tokens for Children's Hospital have been received from H. L. Beck of La Plata, Md., and the Lent Mite Box offering of St. Luke's Sunday School . . . Eagle-eyed District Liners are still pouncing on typographical errors with their accustomed glee. Windsor Thompson of Glenn Dale, Md., ribs us for calling Mrs. Bowman MacArthur a "nephew" of the General. Charles E. Coplan wonders why we changed the name of Bob Hope's picture to "The Jaleface." And Blanche Berlin of 812 Randolph st. nw., discovers that once again we've omitted a comma from a movie listing, so that it reads: "Chills and laughs on a train from Paris at 11:30 a. m., 1:30, 3:30, 5:30, 7:30 and 9:35 p. m." Frequent service on these French trains, eh? . . . The minute we went back to publishing a daily paper, subscribers resumed their nominations for The Washington Post's "very best" carrier boy. Latest to arrive are "Pat Ryan" who serves Mrs. Lenna Krause of 4119 18th pl. ne. and "Nick Smart" whose booster is Capt. Curtis Artz of 524 Knollwood dr., Falls Church, Va. It turns out that Nick (who lives at 618 Tyler ave. in Falls Church) provided the captain with some really special service. Little Johnny Artz got out of the house unnoticed one morning, and got himself very lost. Nick found the lad, and with typical efficiency delivered him to the proper address . . . Assistant City Editor John Singerhoff has a bright suggestion for those of us who have lint troubles with our blue serge suits. He asks: "Why not switch to a white serge suit that would pick up only blue lint?" . . . A few years on the city desk do that to a man.

CONFUSING, EH?

There's a whopping 10 cents worth of entertainment and education to be had at the Lincoln Museum, 511 10th st. nw.

Anybody who hasn't already visited this historic building has a treat in store. But one thing about the admission price puzzles me.

In addition to the dime, you pay 2 cents for tax. Inasmuch as the museum is run by the Federal Government (Department of Interior), I'm a bit confused as to why the Government finds it advisable to charge itself a tax.

And I'm also intrigued by the possibility that some day the Government might fail to collect this 2-cent tax, which would make it necessary for the Government to take action against the Government.

LET THERE BE LIGHT

An indignant District Liner complains that the city has just hung a 250-watt street lamp in front of his bedroom window, with the result that he can't sleep nights, unless he pulls down the shades.

And what's he going to do in the summer time, when a guy can't breathe nights with the shades tightly drawn?

I took the question to Walter E. Kern, District electrical engineer, who acknowledged that the District is now engaged in a huge program of supplying better lighting to city streets.

Kern says that his department has long known that the 60 candlepower bulbs in use here were inadequate, and therefore advocated a change to 250 candlepower bulbs.

Last year the money for this project was provided, and some 7000 of the smaller bulbs were marked for replacement.

The new lights are considered "the latest thing" in this field, and are specially designed to illuminate the streets and sidewalks to make walking and driving safer. It has been demonstrated that better lighting results in fewer car theft and pilfering cases.

Kern explains that most of the new lights are shaded in back, to deflect the light from the houses behind them. However, at intersections, the shades are not used because more light is required, and shadows would be dangerous to vehicular traffic.

But he adds that if there are any cases of individual hardship or injustice, the electrical engineers will be happy to hear from complainants, and see if something can't be worked out to help them.

Listen to Bill Gold's "This Is Washington." the District Line on the Air. Monday through Friday, over WTOP, from 10 a. m. to Arthur Godfrey time at 10:30.

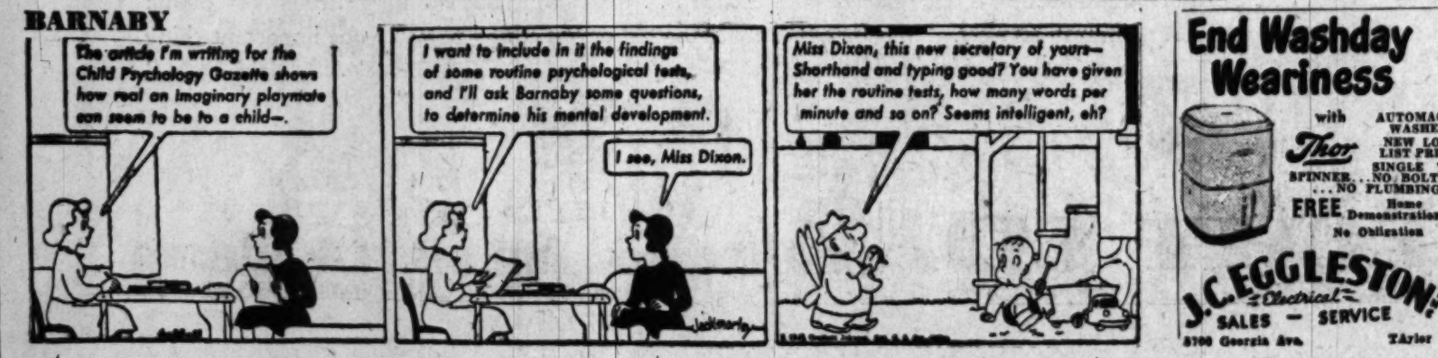
BARNABY



The article I'm writing for the Child Psychology Gazette shows how real an imaginary playmate can seem to be to a child—.
I want to include in it the findings of some routine psychological tests, and I'll ask Barnaby some questions, to determine his mental development.
I see, Miss Dixon.
Miss Dixon, this new secretary of yours—Shorthand and typing good? You have given her the routine tests, how many words per minute and so on? Seems intelligent, eh?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Evatt Is for Peace at All Costs

By Drew Pearson

Keep your eyes on the stubby little man with the gavel in his hand at Lake Success. Herbert V. Evatt, Foreign Minister of Australia and President of the U. N. General Assembly, is the quiet center of the East-West cyclone. He is not afraid to make enemies for himself in his efforts to make peace.

Evatt

Evatt used to be the trigger-man in counter-attacking the Soviets. Now he is leaning over backward to be fair, and bangs his gavel to protect the Russians as well as the Anglo-Saxons.

One day last week Evatt refused to let United States Ambassador Austin come to the defense of the Atlantic Pact, after Soviet Gromyko had attacked it. Reason: Austin had just spoken on another subject, and Evatt made him wait his turn.

The Australian is a human dynamo, and sometimes a grouchy one. When he rides from the Drake Hotel in Manhattan to Lake-Success in the Cadillac limousine assigned to him, he sits up front with the chauffeur, writhing with impatience when they get stuck in crosstown traffic.

But he is even more impatient to get the chariots of peace out of the traffic jam. He thinks the big powers have got themselves worked up to a psychopathic state; wants to knock their heads together.

"Doc" Evatt is one of the few persons who know how close the "neutrals" came to lifting the Berlin blockade during the U. N. session at Paris last fall. At that time he got himself called unprintable names for meddling in the cold war.

But if the cold war is thawed out this spring, it will be partly thanks to the efforts of "intruders" like "Doc" Evatt, who hates war more than he hates the Soviets.

The Diaper Lobby

You can now find registered lobbyists on Capitol Hill from the cradle to the grave.

Beginning at the cradle, the National Institute of Diaper Services of New York retains a lobbyist, Stanley Posner, at $5000 a year. On the other end of life, William C. Henning of Columbus, Ohio, gets $6000 for looking after the legislative interests of the American Cemetery Association.

Even the family wash gets into the lobbying act through Richard A. Tilden of Washington, D. C., who represents clothespin manufacturers for $100 a day—when he works.

Lobbyists' earnings also vary widely, some working for nothing, while others haul down elaborate sums running into and five and six figures. Thomas E. McGrath, address "General Delivery," Washington, D. C., is the self-appointed, nonpaid agent for an outfit which he calls, "Taxpayers, U. S. A."

This rugged individualist informs Congress in his registration form that he pays all his overhead out of his own pocket—including "thinking" expenses. Burton Clark of Washington, a "retired explorer and university professor," also is a nonpaid spokesman for interests ambiguously described as "strictly personal."

Big-Time Lobbyists

However, most of the boys who have registered since the Eighty-first Congress convened last January get big folding money. The American Medical Association employs several lobbyists with five digit incomes, including Frank E. Wilson ($12,000 a year, plus $2400 expenses), and the husband-and-wife firm of Clem Whitaker and Leone Baxter Whitaker, hotshot West Coast publicists. Together they are paid $100,000 a year to unsell Congress on national health insurance.

Gerard D. Reilly, ex-Labor Department solicitor and National Labor Relations Board member, makes more than $50,000 a year lobbying against certain phases of labor legislation he used to champion. His clients include General Motors ($36,000), the Printing Industry of America ($4800) and General Electric (salary to be revealed in a later report to Congress).

Other blue-chip lobbyists are Sherlock Davis, who gets $20,000 a year, plus a fancy expense account, from U. S.-Cuban sugar interests, and the New York public-relations firm of Bell, Jones and Taylor, which lobbies for a string of five-and-dime and variety stores.

Diplomatic Cables

The British high command has taken the highly unusual step of permitting French and Belgian factories to begin building British-type fighters—the highly secret British Vampire and Meteor models. These are the only Allied planes which have any chance of keeping up with the 600-mile an hour Russian jets . . . Stanton Griffis has informed the President he's not anxious to return to the United States Embassy in Cairo. He has a strong yen for the much-coveted job of Ambassador to the Court of St. James's . . . Admiral Hillenkoetter's tour of duty is about up as chief of all American intelligence. Truman is looking for a replacement . . . Freeman Matthews, United States Ambassador to Sweden, heads the list of candidates for the job of Assistant Secretary of State in charge of Latin-American relations.

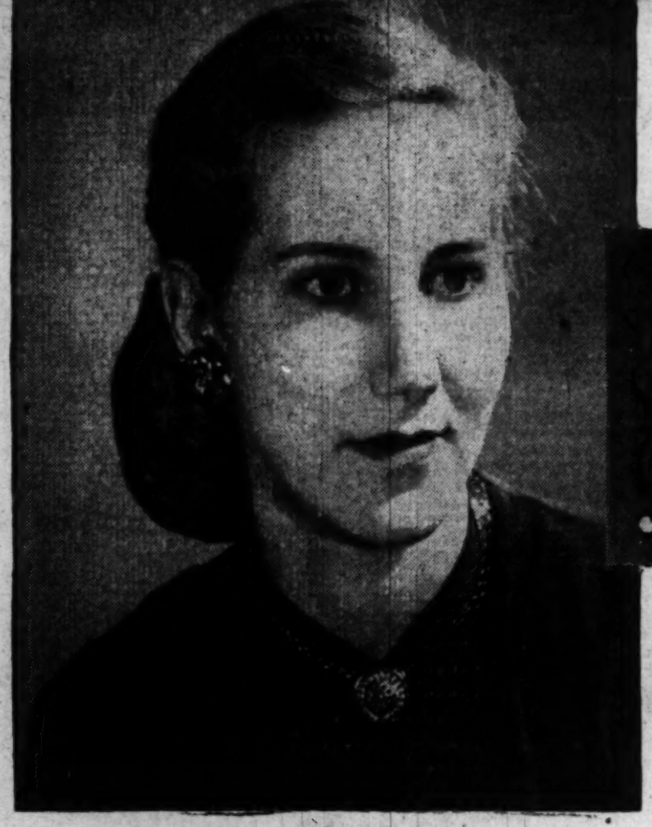
Number 12 in a Series... Hecht Co. Personalities in the News



Something Old, Something New

SAYS ESTELLE KEMLER, DIRECTOR OF THE HECHT CO. BRIDAL BUREAU

Mrs. ESTELLE KEMLER is our blond, but not blushing, Bridal Bureau Director. She has the dramatic poise of a Sarah Bernhardt, as a result of doing Summer stock and Army shows . . . and the soothing, comforting approach of a Florence Nightingale, acquired during her Red Cross work with wounded vets. Estelle hails from New York City where for many years she was fashion stylist for a large organization. She studied fashions and advertising at the Tobe-Coburn School . . . learned about bridal bureaus first hand by getting married . . . always manages to look as pretty as a bride herself.

Several weeks ago a man rushed into The Hecht Co.'s Bridal Bureau. He was breathless . . . frantic . . . at his wits' end. He was going to be married in just half an hour . . . but the bride would not go through with the ceremony unless she had a "Sixpence" coin to place in her shoe. The groom had spent most of the day in a fruitless search for the token. Five minutes after he told our bridal consultant his woeful story . . . the coin was on its way to the church. On another occasion, an English war bride who flew here to be married, was whisked to The Hecht Co.'s Bridal Bureau from National Airport. The G.I.'s parents accompanying the bride asked, "Can you take care of all the details for a wedding to take place the very next day?" Well, the Bridal Bureau got busy. The next day the wedding went off in grand fashion . . . with every last detail taken care of . . . including a complete wardrobe for a Southern honeymoon. These are but a few of the special cases handled by our Audrey Mason and the rice-throwing staff of The Hecht Co.'s Bridal Bureau which is supervised and directed by Mrs. Estelle Kemler. In the three years that The Hecht Co. has offered this service to the public without a penny's charge . . . the bureau has accommodated over 9,000 brides. Sharing the excitement and enthusiasm of these altar-bound girls, the consultants help plan and budget an entire wedding and reception; assist in the selection of engraving and stationery; offer suggestions for decorating church and reception; conduct a personal shopping tour with the bride and aid in the selection of wedding gown and trousseau . . . linens, silverware, china, glassware; advise on any point of etiquette. In addition they give the bride a "Brides' Book of Plans" which is an invaluable guide from the minute the date is set. And several times a year the Bureau conducts a "School for Brides." The weeks before "I do" is uttered can be quite hectic for the matrimonial minded . . . that's why The Hecht Co. offers the public their experienced Bridal Bureau services. "Whether it's something old or something new . . . one important thing every bride should know," says Estelle Kemler, "is The Hecht Co.'s Bridal Bureau."
